Contents

	List of tables Preface		page x xi
		of abbreviations	xiii
1	Wha	1
	1.1	Introduction	1
	1.2	Hue	3
	1.3	Saturation	3
	1.4	Tone	4
	1.5	Brightness	4
	1.6	Other aspects of appearance	5
	1.7	Non-appearance aspects	6
	1.8	Explanation	6
	1.9	Summary	7
2	What is colour semantics?		9
	2.1	Introduction	9
	2.2	Dictionaries and their uses	9
	2.3	William Gladstone, Hugo Magnus and hue blindness	11
	2.4	Grant Allen and colour perception versus naming	13
	2.5		15
	2.6		17
	2.7	Brent Berlin, Paul Kay and linguistic universality	19
3	Basic colour terms		21
	3.1	Introduction	21
	3.2	Basicness	21
	3.3	Non-predictable ('monolexemic') character	23
	3.4	Hyponymy	24
	3.5	Contextual restriction	25
	3.6	Elicited lists	26
		Consensus	27
		Consistency	28
		Idiolectal evidence	29
	3.10		29
	3.11		31
	3.12	Recent loan words	31
			vii

	~
VIII	Contents

	3.13	Morphological complexity	32
	3.14	Expression length	33
	3.15	Frequency of occurrence in texts	34
	3.16	Frequency of occurrence in speech	35
	3.17	Response time	36
	3.18	Type modification	37
	3.19	Domains of expressive culture	38
	3.20	Embedded expressions	39
	3.21	Cultural-historical significance	40
	3.22	Discussion	41
4	Non	-basic and non-standard colour expressions	44
	4.1	Introduction	44
	4.2	Sub-sets and models	44
	4.3	Metaphor and metonymy	48
	4.4	Specialized colour terms	51
	4.5	Significant non-colour features	52
	4.6	Contact languages	55
5	Basic colour categories		58
	5.1	Introduction	58
	5.2	The significance of basic colour categories	58
	5.3	The basic level of categorization	59
	5.4	The structure of a basic colour category	60
	5.5	Macro-categories	61
	5.6	Micro-categories	62
	5.7	Intra-language variation	63
6	The evolutionary sequence		70
	6.1	Introduction	70
	6.2	The 1969 evolutionary sequence	71
	6.3	The role of macro-categories	74
	6.4	The problem of grey	76
	6.5	The role of the Hering primaries	77
	6.6	The arrival of trajectories	78
	6.7	The 1999 evolutionary sequence	81
	6.8	Criticism of early research methodology	84
7	Diff	erent approaches	86
	7.1	Introduction	86
	7.2	Barbara Saunders and Jaap van Brakel	86
	7.3	Natural Semantic Metalanguage	91
	7.4	Vantage theory	98
	7.5	The Emergence Hypothesis	103
	7.6	Universalism and relativism	106
8	Hist	orical projects: preliminaries	109
	8.1	What is a 'historical' language?	109
	8.2	A major problem	110
	8.3	The scope of the study	110

Contents	ix

8.5 Context retrieval 11 8.6 Metalanguage 12 8.7 The separability of colour features 12 9 Synchronic studies 12 9.1 What is a synchronic study? 12' 9.2 Basic data 12' 9.3 Referents 13 9.4 Translations 13' 9.5 Contrasts and comparisons 14' 10 Diachronic studies 152 10.1 What is a diachronic study? 15' 10.2 Colour lexemes and semantic change 15' 10.3 Colour categories and cognitive change 15' 10.4 Linguistic genealogy 16' 11 Prehistoric colour studies 16' 11.1 Introduction 16' 11.2 Modern and historical comparative evidence 16' 11.3 Category development 170'	1
8.7 The separability of colour features 12. 9 Synchronic studies 12. 9.1 What is a synchronic study? 12. 9.2 Basic data 12. 9.3 Referents 13. 9.4 Translations 13. 9.5 Contrasts and comparisons 14. 10 Diachronic studies 15. 10.1 What is a diachronic study? 15. 10.2 Colour lexemes and semantic change 15. 10.3 Colour categories and cognitive change 15. 10.4 Linguistic genealogy 16. 11 Prehistoric colour studies 16. 11.1 Introduction 16. 11.2 Modern and historical comparative evidence 16.	7
9 Synchronic studies 127 9.1 What is a synchronic study? 12 9.2 Basic data 12 9.3 Referents 13 9.4 Translations 13 9.5 Contrasts and comparisons 14 10 Diachronic studies 152 10.1 What is a diachronic study? 152 10.2 Colour lexemes and semantic change 153 10.3 Colour categories and cognitive change 153 10.4 Linguistic genealogy 163 11 Prehistoric colour studies 163 11.1 Introduction 163 11.2 Modern and historical comparative evidence 163	l
9.1 What is a synchronic study? 12' 9.2 Basic data 12' 9.3 Referents 13' 9.4 Translations 13' 9.5 Contrasts and comparisons 14' 10 Diachronic studies 152' 10.1 What is a diachronic study? 15' 10.2 Colour lexemes and semantic change 15' 10.3 Colour categories and cognitive change 15' 10.4 Linguistic genealogy 16' 11 Prehistoric colour studies 16' 11.1 Introduction 16' 11.2 Modern and historical comparative evidence 16'	5
9.2 Basic data 12 9.3 Referents 13 9.4 Translations 13 9.5 Contrasts and comparisons 14 10 Diachronic studies 152 10.1 What is a diachronic study? 153 10.2 Colour lexemes and semantic change 153 10.3 Colour categories and cognitive change 153 10.4 Linguistic genealogy 163 11 Prehistoric colour studies 169 11.1 Introduction 169 11.2 Modern and historical comparative evidence 169	,
9.3 Referents 9.4 Translations 9.5 Contrasts and comparisons 10 Diachronic studies 10.1 What is a diachronic study? 10.2 Colour lexemes and semantic change 10.3 Colour categories and cognitive change 10.4 Linguistic genealogy 11 Prehistoric colour studies 11.1 Introduction 11.2 Modern and historical comparative evidence	7
9.4 Translations 9.5 Contrasts and comparisons 143 10 Diachronic studies 10.1 What is a diachronic study? 10.2 Colour lexemes and semantic change 15.10.3 Colour categories and cognitive change 16.4 Linguistic genealogy 16.5 17 Prehistoric colour studies 18 Introduction 18 Modern and historical comparative evidence	7
9.5 Contrasts and comparisons 143 10 Diachronic studies 10.1 What is a diachronic study? 10.2 Colour lexemes and semantic change 15.1 10.3 Colour categories and cognitive change 16.4 Linguistic genealogy 16.5 17.1 Prehistoric colour studies 18.1 Introduction 18.2 Modern and historical comparative evidence 18.4 Semantic studies 18.5 Semantic studies 18.6 Semantic studies 18.6 Semantic studies 18.6 Semantic studies 18.7 Semantic studies 18.7 Semantic studies 18.7 Semantic studies 18.7 Semantic studies 18.8 Semantic studies 18.9 Semantic stud)
10 Diachronic studies 152 10.1 What is a diachronic study? 153 10.2 Colour lexemes and semantic change 153 10.3 Colour categories and cognitive change 154 10.4 Linguistic genealogy 166 11 Prehistoric colour studies 169 11.1 Introduction 169 11.2 Modern and historical comparative evidence 169	,
10.1 What is a diachronic study? 10.2 Colour lexemes and semantic change 10.3 Colour categories and cognitive change 10.4 Linguistic genealogy 16. 11 Prehistoric colour studies 11.1 Introduction 11.2 Modern and historical comparative evidence 16.	į
10.2 Colour lexemes and semantic change 15. 10.3 Colour categories and cognitive change 15. 10.4 Linguistic genealogy 16. 11 Prehistoric colour studies 16. 11.1 Introduction 16. 11.2 Modern and historical comparative evidence 16.	!
10.3 Colour categories and cognitive change 10.4 Linguistic genealogy 11.1 Prehistoric colour studies 11.1 Introduction 11.2 Modern and historical comparative evidence 11.3 Colour categories and cognitive change 15.5 Colour studies 16.5 Colour categories and cognitive change 16.6 Colour categories and cognitive change 16.7 Colour categories and cognitive change 17.7 Colour categories and categories and categories and categories and categories and categories
10.4 Linguistic genealogy 16. 11 Prehistoric colour studies 169 11.1 Introduction 169 11.2 Modern and historical comparative evidence 169	;
Prehistoric colour studies 169 11.1 Introduction 169 11.2 Modern and historical comparative evidence 169)
11.1 Introduction16911.2 Modern and historical comparative evidence169	i
11.2 Modern and historical comparative evidence 169	t
)
11.3 Category development 170)
)
11.4 Prototypes 172	!
11.5 Etymology and prototype change	1
11.6 Semantic shift
11.7 From the known to the unknown 183	1
12 Applications and potential 193
12.1 Introduction 193
12.2 Robert Edgeworth and the Aeneid 193
12.3 Literary limitations 194
12.4 Comparative literary studies 196	ŀ
12.5 John Baines and Ancient Egypt 197
12.6 Conclusion 198
Appendix: Metalanguage, signs and conventions 199	i rippenaix. Includinguage, signs and contents
Glossary
110163
Bibliography 236
Subject index 255	