

---

Table of Contents

---

Acknowledgements	vii
Introduction: Striding Both Worlds	ix
1 Māori Nationalism	1
'New' Māori Literature	1
Romanticism, Realism, and the National Imaginary	11
National Māori Literature	25
Bicultural Nationalism: Waituhi: The Life of the Village	35
Limits of Bicultural Nationalism: "Selfish" Writing	46
2 International Aesthetics	61
Underreading and Overreading	61
Inter-Reference: A Verdian Matriarch	74
Testing the Limits of Inter-Reference: Rewriting Mansfield	89
3 The Local and the Global	109
Māori Modernity	109
Crossing Genres, Crossing Technologies: Whale Rider	115
Being Māori in the World: Chosen Communities	124
Cultural Specificity and Global 'Scapes'	136
4 Ambivalent Indigeneity	155
Indigenous Postcolonialism	155
Indigenous Diaspora	174
Eidolon and Ambivalence	188
Conclusion: Composite Identity and Literature	205
Works Cited	215
Index	235