

Contents

Acknowledgements	v
Notes on Contributors	vi
Preface	x
Lucy Mazdon

PART I: HISTORIES

Introduction	3
Lucy Mazdon
1 The Writer/Producer in American Television	11
Roberta Pearson
2 The Lack of Influence of thirtysomething	27
Jane Feuer
3 Twin Peaks : David Lynch and the Serial-Thriller Soap	37
Linda Ruth Williams
4 Quality/Cult Television: The X-Files and Television History	57
Catherine Johnson

PART II: THE SERIES/SERIAL FORM

Introduction	75
Michael Hammond
5 Television and the Neo-Baroque	83
Angela Ndalians
6 Serial Narrative and Guest Stars: Ally McBeal's Eccentrics	102
Greg Smith

7	The Representation of Youth and the Twenty-Something Serial Sarah Cardwell	123
8	Violence and Therapy in The Sopranos Jason Jacobs	139
9	Television, Horror and Everyday Life in Buffy the Vampire Slayer Eric Freedman	159

PART III: RECEPTIONS

	Introduction Michael Hammond	183
10	Cult TV, Quality and the Role of the Episode/Programme Guide Matt Hills	190
11	Creating 'Quality' Audiences for ER on Channel Four Janet McCabe	207
12	The Bartlet Administration and Contemporary Populism in NBC's The West Wing J. Elizabeth Clark	224
	Bibliography	244
	Filmography	253
	Index	256