

CONTENTS

INTRODUCTION . . . . . Pages xv-xvi

I

ENGLAND IN THE SEVENTEENTH CENTURY

Aspect of England — Population — Enclosures — Aspect of towns — Populations of London and Westminster, Bristol and Norwich — Total urban population — Industrial state of the Country — Emigration to the towns — Centres of Industry . . . . . Pages 1-4

II

ROADS AND BRIDGES

Early history of roads — Increasing decay — Legal liabilities for maintenance — Repairs neglected or inefficiently performed — Methods employed — Roads in winter and summer — Floods — Indefinite tracks and short-cuts — Difficulties of winter travel — The Counties and their highways — London and neighbourhood — Hindrances to traffic — Street scavenging — The streets of some provincial towns — Increasing use of waggons and coaches demonstrate insufficiency of roads — Original proposals for upkeep of roads — Restrictions upon use of waggons and coaches — Deepening of rivers — Patents for coach improvements — Fresh highway legislation and the first Turnpike Act — Extension of system — Maintenance of bridges — Constant repair necessary — Narrowness and rudeness of superstructures — Incident near York — Widening of bridges — Scarcity of bridges — London Bridge — Derbyshire bridges — Fragility of structures leads to accidents — Bridges swept away in storms . . . . . Pages 5-34

CONTENTS

vii

III

THE WATCH

Origin of Watch — Duties of Watchmen — Development of English Sunday — Travelling restrictions upon Roman Catholic Recusants — Proscription of Priesthood — Restraint upon movements of Nobility — Habits of Watchmen — An average night's Watch — Arrest of Thomas Ellwood — Activity of Watch in time of trouble — Flight of the Gunpowder Conspirators and escape of Charles II — Suspicions and alarms of countryfolk — Examination of the Duke of Buckingham — Insecurity of coast-line — Adventures of John Taylor at Cromer and at Goring . . . . . Pages 35-51

IV

CARRIAGE BY LAND AND WATER

Institution of posthorse service — Privileges and restrictions — Deterioration of system — Reorganization — Difficulties of postmasters — Hiring of horses — Buying and selling — Prices — Riding pillion — Advantages and disadvantages of travelling on horseback — Riding between packsaddles — Difficulties of coach travel — Early type of coach — Hackney-coaches — Increasing use of coaches — Their advantages — The Horse-litter and the Chair — Improvements and experiments in coach building — Prices — Magnificence — Coach-horses — Cost of coach hire — Stage-waggons — Stage-coaches, their advent and increase — Fares — Boom and slump — Flying-coaches — Types of stage-coaches — Loss of luggage — Footmen — Attempts to suppress stage-coaches — Combined river and land travel — River travel — The Thames — Competition with hackney-coachmen — Inconveniences of river travel — Ill manners of water-men — Fraudulent travellers — Decline of Thames watermen's trade — The Press — A winter storm — Accidents — Shooting London Bridge — Effects of severe weather — Frost Fairs — River pageants and demonstrations — Royal barges and others — Lord Mayor's Show — Excursions — Transport of goods by river — Lack of river conservation — Bristol wherries and the Corporation barge — The Cross-Channel passages — Packet-boats — Fares and expenses — Restrictions upon export of money — Detection of suspects — Government vessels and merchantmen — Calms and storms — Perilous crossings — Difficulties of entering port — Pirates and privateers — Licences for travellers — Fleeing the country — Attempted escape of the Lady Arabella Stuart . . . . . Pages 52-126

V

INNS, ALEHOUSES, AND OTHER LODGING

Inns to be used for accommodation of wayfarers — Difficulties of finding lodging — Probable causes — Descriptions of a first-class inn — Reception and treatment of travellers — Friendly intercourse between host and guest — Charges — Crowding of inns and consequent discomfort — Inns places of public resort — Disorders — Private lodgings — Hospitality of gentry and others — Benighted travellers — Cottage and alehouse accommodation — Inns and alehouses of ill repute — Stealing from travellers — An ingenious method of getting custom . . . . . Pages 127-151

VI

HIGHWAYMEN

Methods of suppression — Increase of robberies — Proclamations for apprehension of highwaymen — Epidemic of robberies under William III — Expeditions to break up gangs — Day and night patrols near London — Sentimental attitude of public towards highwaymen — Reprieves, pardons, and The Press — Befriending highwaymen —

CONTENTS

ix

Charles II and Swift Nicks — Highwaymen recruited from all classes — Armed travellers — Riding in company — Suspicions and alarms — Noted robbing-places — Prudence and temerity of travellers — Notable victims — Clavel's advice to travellers — Two classes of gentlemen highwaymen — Justice in the North — A footpad robs John Evelyn — Horse stealing — Footpads and highwaymen — Battles between highwaymen and countryfolk . . . Pages 152-184

VII

TRIALS AND TRIBULATIONS

Insecurity of the roads — Assaults and abductions — Drunkenness — Disputes and blows — Travel in time of war — Adventures sought and unsought — Fugitives — Travel in time of plague — Commoner risks of travel — Delinquent state of the roads — Coach accidents — Trials of travelling in winter and summer — A winter's journey from Yorkshire to London — Riding through Derbyshire in rain — Fording rivers — Crossing estuaries — Guides — Pleasure trips and some minor misfortunes . . . . Pages 185-224

VIII

ON THE ROAD

Royal travellers and their retinues — Expenses of royal progresses — Acclamations of populace — A wayside entertainment — Reception of distinguished travellers in corporate towns — A royal visitor from Italy — The inconveniences of travelling the same road as a royal Duke — Arrogance of retainers of nobility — Size of retinues — Ambassadorial splendour — Riding the Circuit — Pilgrimages — A survey of those travelling during the second half of the seventeenth century — Vagrants — Surveillance of poor honest travellers — Settlement of the Poor — Rogues and imposters — Punishments — Players and itinerant traders — Prosecution of unlicensed sellers — Quakers and the Vagrancy laws — Travels of Quaker ministers and of others of that Faith — Travelling under duress . . . . Pages 225-279

IX

TRAVELLERS AND TRAVELLING

|   |               |
|---|---------------|
| Ignorance of England — Travel for business not pleasure — The foreign tourist in London and the country — Truculent and suspicious temper of the English — John Taylor's Pennyless Pilgrimage — Edward Kemp's morris dance from London to Norwich — Taylor's journeys by land and water — Pleasant travels and convivial entertainment of the three Norwich militiamen — Suspicions of rustic communities and difficulties of intercourse — Mrs. Celia Fiennes, explorer — Her observations upon the country and the towns — Her sightseeing proclivities — Manufactories and mines — Local customs and observances — Travellers' interest in phenomena — The seven Wonders of the Peak — Wokey Hole — Other remarkable sights — Spas — Bath — Buxton — Epsom . . . . . | Pages 280-322 |
| EXTRA NOTES . . . . .   | Pages 323-332 |
| APPENDICES . . . . .  | Pages 333-337 |
| SOME BOOKS CONSULTED . . . . .  | Pages 338-345 |
| INDEX . . . . .   | Pages 347-354 |