

Contents

Acknowledgments	Page vii
Notes on Contributors	ix
Introduction	1
</Parentheses>: Digital Humanities and the Place of Pedagogy Brett D. Hirsch	3
I. Practices	31
1. The PhD in Digital Humanities Willard McCarty	33
2. Hands-On Teaching Digital Humanities Malte Rehbein and Christiane Fritze	47
3. Teaching Digital Skills in an Archives and Public History Curriculum Peter J. Wosh, Cathy Moran Hajo and Esther Katz	79
4. Digital Humanities and the First-Year Writing Course Olin Bjork	97
5. Teaching Digital Humanities through Digital Cultural Mapping Chris Johanson and Elaine Sullivan, with Janice Reiff, Diane Favro, Todd Presner and Willeke Wendrich	121
6. Looking for Whitman: A Multi-Campus Experiment in Digital Pedagogy Matthew K. Gold	151
7. Acculturation and the Digital Humanities Community Geoffrey Rockwell and Stéfan Sinclair	177

II. Principles	213
8. Teaching Skills or Teaching Methodology? Simon Mahony and Elena Pierazzo	215
9. Programming with Humanists Stephen Ramsay	217
10. Teaching Computer-Assisted Text Analysis Stéfan Sinclair and Geoffrey Rockwell	241
11. Pedagogical Principles of Digital Historiography Joshua Sternfeld	255
12. Nomadic Archives: Remix and the Drift to Praxis Virginia Kuhn and Vicki Callahan	291
III. Politics	309
13. On the Digital Future of Humanities Jon Saklofske, Estelle Clements and Richard Cunningham	311
14. Opening Up Digital Humanities Education Lisa Spiro	331
15. Multiliteracies in the Undergraduate Digital Humanities Curriculum Tanya Clement	365
16. Wikipedia, Collaboration, and the Politics of Free Knowledge Melanie Kill	389
Select Bibliography	407