

Contents

List of illustrations	ix
Acknowledgements	xi
Introduction: decision makers, doctes and theatre	1
1. Culture wars: philosophes and anti- philosophes in eighteenth-century France	35
2. The anatomy of a crime: polemics, pamphlets and preconditioning	49
3. A critical performance: Les Philosophes hits the boards	73
4. Parterre and balcony, spectator and reader: Palissot's dramaturgical strategies	91
5. Pamphlets on the stage: Voltaire's riposte philosophique	113
6. Spectators or readers? Voltaire's 'public' concerns in L'Ecoissaise	143
7. The affair continues: critical uncertainty in eighteenth-century France	161
8. (Re)Creating the event: performance criticism as intellectual war	179
9. Following the event: new definitions of theatre and spectatorship	195
10. Aftermath: theatre and polemics in pre-Revolutionary France	217
Conclusion: le cri public	245
Bibliography	255
Index	267