

Contents

Acknowledgements	xi
Note on References	xiii
Introduction	1
Part I The Armistice and the Peace, 1919	7
Introduction	9
1. The Occupation of the Rhineland	11
The Decision to Occupy the Rhineland, October 1918	11
The March to the Rhine, November– December 1918	15
2. The Reluctant Assumption of Commitments, January–June 1919	21
The Genesis of the Control Commissions	21
The Fifteen-Year Occupation of the Rhineland	24
Schleswig, Danzig and the Eastern Borders	29
3. The British in the Rhineland, 1919	32
The Crisis in Morale	32
The Inter-Allied Dimension, December 1918– May 1919	37
The British Military Government in the Cologne Zone	42
A Clash between Two Worlds: Anglo–German Relations in the Cologne Zone in 1919	56
4. Preparing for Ratification, June–December 1919	60
The Triumph of the Civilians in the Rhineland	61
Setting up the Control Commissions	68
Danzig and the Plebiscite Commissions	74
Part II 1920: Enforcing the Treaty	81
Introduction: 1920 – A Sombre Prospect	83

Contents

5.	The Plebiscites	87
	Schleswig, January–June 1920	87
	Allenstein and Marienwerder, January–August 1920	93
	The Upper Silesian Commission: The Attempt to Pacify Upper Silesia	101
6.	Cologne and Danzig: The Gibaltars of the North	110
	Sir Reginald Tower at Danzig	110
	Sir Harold Stuart and Arnold Robertson at Coblenz	124
7.	Control Commences	134
Part III The Disintegrating Entente, January 1921–December 1922		147
Introduction: The Diplomatic Background		149
8.	The Double Crisis: Sanctions and Upper Silesia	155
	The Rhineland and the Sanctions Crisis, 1921	155
	The Ambiguous Plebiscite: Upper Silesia, 1921–1922	166
	British Business and Upper Silesia: A Postscript to the Plebiscite	181
9.	Polarization within the IAMCC, 1921–1922	184
10.	The Rhineland under the Shadow of Poincaré, 1922	199
11.	The British in Cologne, 1920–1923	209
Part IV The Ruhr Crisis, January 1923–January 1924		217
Introduction: The Turning Point		219
12.	Benevolent Passivity and Passive Resistance, January–September 1923	221
	The Policy of Benevolent Passivity	221
	Cologne: ‘Die Insel der Seligen’ (‘The Island of the Blest’).
	The British Occupation during the Period of Passive Resistance, January–September 1923	223
13.	The Dual Challenge of Economic and Political Separatism, October 1923–January 1924	235

Contents

MICUM, the Régie and the Rhenish Notenbank The Separatist Challenge, September 1923– January 1924	236 245
14. The Impact of the Ruhr Crisis on the Control Commissions	253
Part V From Dawes to Locarno, February 1924– January 1926	261
Introduction	263
15. Liquidating the Ruhr Crisis, 1924 The Dawes Plan and the London Conference, April–August 1924 The Slow Return to Normality: The Cologne Zone, 1924 The Struggle to Resume Control, January– November 1924	265 266 269 277
16. Locarno and Evacuation Introduction The Decision to Defer Evacuation of the Northern Zone, January 1925 Chamberlain's Diplomatic Offensive The Occupation in Suspended Animation, January–November 1925 The Wauchope–D'Abernon Axis, January– November 1925 Locarno The 'Hors d'oeuvres of Locarno'	282 282 282 284 285 287 291 293
Part VI The Occupation and the Locarno Spirit, 1926–1927	303
Introduction	305
17. The Problems of Occupation in the Locarno Era: The British in the Wiesbaden Bridgehead, 1926–1927	307
18. The Withdrawal of the IAMCC	318
Part VII The Final Phase, 1928–1930	325
Introduction	327

Contents

19.	The 'Dying Occupation'	329
	The Beleaguered Rhine Army, January 1928– July 1929	329
	The Re-emergence of the Evacuation Question	333
20.	The End of the Occupation	337
	The Hague Conference and the Decision to Withdraw the Rhine Army	337
	The Evacuation, September 1929–June 1930	339
	Conclusion	343
	List of Abbreviations	351
	Glossary of German terms	352
	Select Bibliography	353
	Index	366
	Maps
	The Occupied Rhineland, 1918–1926	xiv
	Upper Silesia	xv