

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Acknowledgments	xi
Chapter 1: Introduction	1
1. The Renaissance problem of living well	1
2. Alberti's ironic approach to ethical understanding	6
3. The fourteenth-century heritage to Alberti's inquiry	16
4. The Vita Sancti Potiti as an entry to Alberti's ironic investigation	24
Chapter 2: Ethics, Scholarship, and Politics: Aspects of Early Quattrocento Humanism	35
1. General characteristics	35
2. Leonardo Bruni: virtue honest, happy, and useful	45
3. Matteo Palmieri and the practical rules for living well	67
Chapter 3: Rectitude and Reputation: Alberti, Boccaccio, and Humanist Moral Stature	85
1. Alberti's relation to Boccaccio in terms of the erotic, irony, and the poetic	85
2. The inward turn to the psychological in Maritus	94
3. Defunctus and the irony of the humanist narrator	99
4. Fraternal conflict over reputation in Uxoriam	105
Chapter 4: Confronting Fortune with Virtue: The Therapy of Irony, the Irony of Therapy	111
1. The dialogues of Alberti and Poggio Bracciolini	111
2. Poggio's thoughts on the moral hazards of public service	118
3. The Theogenius and the play of perspectives on life's changing fortunes	134
Chapter 5: Humanist Literacy: Alberti, Petrarch, and the Vagaries of Textual Interpretation	165
1. Alberti's receptivity to Petrarch's thinking on virtue and fortune	165

2. Della famiglia : moral honor and humanist frailty	172
3. Profugiorum ab erumna libri : Ulysses as a model of overcoming social treachery	178
Chapter 6: Humanist Friendship: Alberti's Lessons in Prose and Verse	187
1. The Certame coronario of 1441	187
2. The ironies of honorable friendships in the Della famiglia	195
3. The hidden goddess of Friendship: Trecento and Homeric adaptations	205
Chapter 7: The Masks of Rhetoric and Alberti's Momus	225
1. The return to Rome and the enigma of the Momus	225
2. Simulation and dissimulation in the theater of orators: Greek resonances	230
3. The psychological origin of humanist errancy in anxiety	241
4. Hercules among the philosophers: humanist sincerity and inauthenticity	250
Chapter 8: Humanist Ironies and the Language of Living Well	257
1. Moral valuations and skepticism: Valla's De vero bono	257
2. The insecurity of humanist knowledge and its ironic exposure	268
3. The legacy of Alberti's irony in later Florentine humanism	274
4. The irony of the Renaissance individual toward conventional ways of living well	280
Bibliography	285
Appendix: List of Humanist Works Discussed	309
Index	311