

Table of contents

Cognitive linguistics and the notion of construction in French studies: An overview Myriam Bouveret and Dominique Legallois	1
PART I. Verbal constructions
Verb typology: Between construction and lexicon Dominique Willems	23
Is there a SE FAIRE V-er passive construction? Sophie Raineri	49
Être une/Faire partie de : Not a piece of cake Philippe Gréa	71
GIVE frames and constructions in French Myriam Bouveret	99
PART II. Acquisition of verbal constructions
Constructing 'basic' verbal constructions: A longitudinal study of the blossoming of constructions with six frequent verbs Aliyah Morgenstern and Christophe Parisse	127
L2 acquisition of verbal constructions: Expressing motion in L2 French and English Sarah Berthaud and Stanislava Antonijević	155
PART III. Semantics, pragmatics and constructions
The impersonal value of demonstrative and middle constructions Michel Achard	177

“ C’est de la bombe! ”: Qualitative count-to-mass conversion in French copular subject-predicate constructions	201
Guillaume Desagulier
Le prix est (de) 15 euros : On copular constructions expressing quantification in French	233
Peter Lauwers
From grammaticalization to expressive constructions: The case of histoire de + inf.	257
Dominique Legallois
Index of constructions	283
Index	285