

Table of contents

Authors' biographies	VII
Preface: Introductory remarks on new and old quotatives Isabelle Buchstaller and Ingrid Van Alphen	XI
PART I. Discourse perspectives
Impersonal quotation and hypothetical discourse Andrea Golato	3
By three means: The pragmatic functions of three Norwegian quotatives Ingrid Kristine Hasund, Toril Opsahl and Jan Svennevig	37
PART II. Typological perspectives
Minds divided: Speaker attitudes in quotatives Stef Spronck	71
Thetic speaker-instantiating quotative indexes as a cross-linguistic type Tom Güldemann	117
PART III. Functional and formal perspectives
On the characteristics of Japanese reported discourse: A study with special reference to elliptic quotation David Y. Oshima and Shin-ichiro Sano	145
Quotative go and be like : Grammar and grammaticalization Lieven Vandelanotte	173
Quotation in sign languages: A visible context shift Annika Herrmann and Markus Steinbach	203

PART IV. Language variation and change

Performed narrative: The pragmatic function of this is + speaker and other quotatives in London adolescent speech Sue Fox	231
Dutch quotative van : Past and present Peter-Arno Coppens and Ad Foolen	259
Appendix: Glossary of specialist terms for research in quotation	281
Author index	291
Index of terms	293