
Contents

| | |
|---|------|
| List of illustrations | viii |
| Preface | x |
| Acknowledgments | xiv |
| | |
| 1 Narrative as a primary act of mind? LINDA S. LEVSTIK | 1 |
| 2 The relationship between historical response and narrative in a sixth-grade classroom LINDA S. LEVSTIK | 10 |
| 3 Building a sense of history in a first-grade classroom LINDA S. LEVSTIK | 30 |
| 4 Visualizing time KEITH C. BARTON | 61 |
| 5 “Back when God was around and everything”: Elementary children’s understanding of historical time KEITH C. BARTON AND LINDA S. LEVSTIK | 71 |
| 6 “They still use some of their past”: Historical salience in elementary children’s chronological thinking LINDA S. LEVSTIK AND KEITH C. BARTON | 108 |
| 7 Making connections KEITH C. BARTON | 148 |

vi Contents

- 8 “Bossed around by the queen”: Elementary students’ understanding of individuals and institutions in history 159
KEITH C. BARTON
- 9 Narrative simplifications in elementary students’ historical thinking 183
KEITH C. BARTON
- 10 “I just kinda know”: Elementary students’ ideas about historical evidence 209
KEITH C. BARTON
- 11 What makes the past worth knowing? 228
LINDA S. LEVSTIK
- 12 “It wasn’t a good part of history”: National identity and students’ explanations of historical significance 240
KEITH C. BARTON AND LINDA S. LEVSTIK
- 13 Articulating the silences: Teachers’ and adolescents’ conceptions of historical significance 273
LINDA S. LEVSTIK
- 14 Challenging the familiar 292
KEITH C. BARTON
- 15 A sociocultural perspective on children’s understanding of historical change: Comparative findings from Northern Ireland and the United States 300
KEITH C. BARTON
- 16 “You’d be wanting to know about the past”: Social contexts of children’s historical understanding in Northern Ireland and the U.S.A. 333
KEITH C. BARTON
- 17 Border crossings 355
LINDA S. LEVSTIK

| | | |
|----|---|-----|
| 18 | Crossing the empty spaces: Perspective taking in New Zealand adolescents' understanding of national history | 366 |
| | LINDA S. LEVSTIK | |
| 19 | Digging for clues: An archaeological exploration of historical cognition | 393 |
| | LINDA S. LEVSTIK, A. GWYNN HENDERSON, AND JENNIFER S. SCHLARB | |
| | Afterword | 408 |
| | Index | 414 |