

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments	ix
Introduction — ‘When the lights of health go down’: Narratives in Negative	I
1 On the Kristevan Semiotic: Language, Desire and Subjectivity	II
Silence, voice and (narrative) word	13
The ‘unnameable feminine’	20
Drives and desire	24
The destructive dialectic of repression	28
2 Hidden Voices: Revelatory Female Illness in Italo Svevo’s Senilità and La coscienza di Zeno	37
Introduction	37
The infected narrative eye in ‘Il malocchio’	41
Amalia’s illness: death and desire in Senilità	45
Il contrappasso di Basedow: Ada’s voice in La coscienza di Zeno	63
3 Intimacy in Illness and Silence: Giorgio Pressburger’s ‘La legge degli spazi bianchi’ and ‘Vera’	87
Introduction	87
La legge degli spazi bianchi	91
‘La legge degli spazi bianchi’	92
‘Vera’	106
4 ‘Street-haunting’: Reclaiming the Semiotic in Giuliana Morandini’s Caffè Specchi	125
Introduction	125
Katharina and the city	134
Language, voice and the female ‘space off’	146
Conclusion — Clues, Traces and Symptoms of the Intimate: Towards a ‘Morellization’ of the Ill Voice	169
Bibliography	175
Index	183