

Contents

CHAPTER ONE

Introduction: Problems with the German model	1
The traditional conception of German political economy and its problems	3
Reconceptualizing the sources of German industrial power	19
Organization of the argument	31

CHAPTER TWO

Blending in: Decentralized industrialization in Germany	33
The origins of decentralized industrial order	34
Decentralized adaptation: Industrialization 1800–1918	41
Recomposition and stabilization, 1900–1945	58
Conclusion: Alternative industrialization	71

CHAPTER THREE

Repositioning organized capitalism into regions: Autarkic industrial order in Germany	72
Regional preconditions for autarkic industrial order	73
Case studies of autarkic industrialization: Volume and batch producers	75
Conclusion: Autarkic industrialization	110

CHAPTER FOUR

The national context: 1871–1945	111
Constructing national institutional frameworks to accommodate different regional capitalisms	112

viii	Contents
The Imperial Reich	115
The Weimar Republic	123
Nazi accommodation	139
Conclusion: Composite architecture of national governance mechanisms	142
CHAPTER FIVE
Return to regions: The development of the decentralized industrial order since 1945	143
Abandoning the decentralized industrial order	146
Continuity in decentralization: Capital goods producers and the reconstitution of decentralized industrial order	163
The rise and decline of the decentralized form of industrial order since the 1980s	177
CHAPTER SIX
Autarkic industrial order: 1945–1994	205
The reconstitution of autarkic industrial order in western Germany	206
Crisis and transformation: Autarky since the mid 1970s	235
Conclusion: Crisis in the autarkic industrial order	253
CHAPTER SEVEN
The national context: 1945–1994	255
The accommodation of autarkic and decentralized industrial order during the economic miracle	257
The period of centralization, 1956–1980	262
A new period of decentralization	275
Conclusion: Constructing governance	286
NOTES	289
BIBLIOGRAPHY	405
LIST OF INTERVIEWEES	459
APPENDIX: MAPS	467
INDEX	473