

CONTENTS

Illustrations xiii

Preface xv

Prologue. Youth, Maturity, Old Age: Three Letters 3

1787: The Death of Beethoven's Mother 3 1812: Letter to a Child 8

1826: The Old Child 12 Life and Works 15

PART ONE: THE EARLY YEARS

1770–1792

1. Beginnings 25

Bonn as a Musical Center 25 Bach from the Hands of Neefe 31

Kant, Schiller, and the Enlightenment 35

Max Franz and the Mozart Legacy 38 Family, Friends, and Patrons 42

To Vienna in Search of Mozart 46 The Last Years in Bonn 47

Waldstein's Prophecy 50

2. Music of the Bonn Years 53

Early Keyboard Music 53

“This passage has been stolen from Mozart” 55

Composing and Sketching 62 Cantatas for Two Emperors 64

PART TWO: THE FIRST MATURITY
1792–1802

3. The First Years in Vienna 69

- The Political Atmosphere 69 Vienna as a Musical Center 73
 Confronting the Viennese Aristocracy 74 Haydn 80
Playing for an Elector and a King 86 Entering the Publishing World 88

4. Music of the First Vienna Years 93

- Revising Earlier Works 93 Chamber Music and Piano Sonatas 96

5. Years of Crisis 111

- Deafness 111 The Heiligenstadt Testament 115

6. Music for and with Piano 124

- The “New Way” and the Early Sketchbooks 124
A Laboratory of Invention: More Piano Sonatas 130
From Convention to Originality: Piano Variations 140
New Violin Sonatas 142 The Earlier Piano Concertos 144

7. Music for Orchestra and the First Quartets 147

- The First Symphony and the Prometheus Ballet 147
 The French Dimension and Military Music 151
 The Second Symphony 156
Opus 18: “I have now learned how to write string quartets” 159

8. The First Maturity: An Overview 169

PART THREE: THE SECOND MATURITY

1802–1812

9. Beethoven in the New Age 181

Napoleon and Self-Made Greatness 181 Beethoven and His Milieu 187
 Relations with Women 196

10. New Symphonic Ideals 202

The Heroic and the Beautiful 202 The Third Symphony (Eroica) 204
 The Fourth Symphony 214
 The Fifth and Sixth ("Pastoral") Symphonies 217
 The Seventh and Eighth Symphonies 230

11. The Mature Concertos 238

The New Symphonie concertante: The Triple Concerto 238
 The Fourth Piano Concerto 241 The Violin Concerto 245
 The "Emperor" Concerto 248

12. Music for the Stage 252

The Opera Leonore and Its Overtures 255 The Coriolanus Overture 262
 Incidental Music for Goethe's Egmont 266

13. Vocal Music 269

Oratorio and Mass 269 The Songs 274

14. Beethoven at the Keyboard 280

Improvising and Composing at the Piano 280 Pianos 288
 The "Waldstein" and "Appassionata" Sonatas 292
 Piano Sonatas Opp. 79–81a 299
 Lyrical and Monumental Chamber Music 303

15. String Quartets 312

The “Razumovsky” Quartets 312

The “Harp” Quartet and the “Quartetto Serioso” 325

PART FOUR: THE FINAL MATURITY

1813–1827

16. The “Fallow” Years 333

The Congress of Vienna 334 Lighter Works 336

Celebrating Wellington’s Victory 337 Fidelio 341

New Sonatas 342 An die ferne Geliebte 344

Emergence of the Late Style 346

17. Beethoven’s Inner and Outer Worlds 349

Isolation and Deafness 349 The Guardianship Struggle 355

“The human brain . . . is not a salable commodity” 358

The Final Projects 363

18. Bringing the Past into the Present 366

The Third Maturity 366

Beethoven’s Knowledge of Bach and Handel 370

19. Late Piano Music 377

The Hammerklavier Sonata, Opus 106 377

Piano Sonatas Opp. 109–111 384

The “Diabelli” Variations 391 The Late Bagatelles 395

20. The Celestial and the Human 400

The Missa solennis 400 The Ninth Symphony 411

The Political Background of the Ninth 413

Changing Views of the Ninth 417

Composing the Ninth 424 The Character of the Ninth 427

21. Timeless Music: The Last Quartets 441

Introduction 441 Opus 127 446 Opus 132 452

Opus 130 and the Grand Fugue 458 Opus 131 468

Opus 135 479 Final Thoughts 488

Notes 491

Chronology 551

Bibliography 559

Classified Index of Beethoven's Works 579

Index of Beethoven's Works by Opus Number 585

General Index 591

The symbol *W denotes a music example in score, located on
W. W. Norton's Web site at www.wwnorton.com/trade/lockwood.

The first such reference appears on page 55.