

Contents

---

List of figures	ix
List of tables	x
List of abbreviations	xi
A spatial and historical introduction	1
The weight of the Mediterranean heritage	1
History: a missed opportunity	4
Spatial duality: a foregone conclusion or the result of marginalisation?	7
The State and the regions: in search of a compromise	8
Invariable tendencies	9
Chapter 1 The natural environment: harshness and seductive fertility	11
A largely mountainous relief	11
An apparently benign climate	25
Hydrological systems in Italy	31
Major aspects of Italian biogeography	33
Conclusion	36
Chapter 2 Man and the social environment	38
The demographic revolution	39
Ill-adapted life-styles	50
Chapter 3 Economic transformation and disequilibrium	64
Inadequate natural resources	65
Unequally developed economic structures	68
Themes and problems of a feeble economy	77
Conclusion	95
Chapter 4 Regions and regional policies	99
Regional structure and spatial organisation	99

Contents

Fundamental aspects of the Questione Meridionale	103
Programmes for the development of the South: policies and results over thirty years	107
Regional systems	110
Chapter 5 Northern Italy and its regional system	112
The spatial network	112
Turin and the Piedmont desert	122
Lombardy dominated by Milan	127
From the Brenner to Emilia: axes and crossroads	132
The Ligurian lattice	136
Around the Gulf of Venice: a poorly integrated region	138
Chapter 6 North-central Italy: a transitional zone towards the real South	143
Northern Tuscany	143
The Apennine mountains and basins	147
The Adriatic flank: from Pesaro to Molise	151
The Tyrrhenian flank of central Italy: the Mezzogiorno advances north	153
Rome: Italy's capital	156
Chapter 7 The Deep South of the peninsula	165
Regions of the Adriatic and the Gulf of Taranto	165
Mountains and basins of the southern Apennines: from Molise to Calabria, the poorest part of Italy	170
Campania and the Neapolitan region	177
Chapter 8 The islands: Sicily and Sardinia	183
Sicily	184
Sardinia	196
Crisis or transition?	208
Literature cited	210
English Language Bibliography, compiled by Russell King	211
Short filmography	218
Index	221