

Contents

| | |
|---|-----------|
| List of Illustrations | x |
| A Foreword by Patrice Pavis | xi |
| Acknowledgments | xii |
| Introduction: Part 1 | 1 |
| Homo americanus as global and cultural other | 5 |
| The Franco-European view of American anti-intellectualism | 10 |
| Dialectical 'culture as critique' versus American 'unculture' | 13 |
| The undialectical American doctrine of self-interest | 18 |
| Name That Culture! (or: What country am I in?) | 20 |
| Introduction: Part 2 | 31 |
| The hyper(un)reality of the American society of spectacle | 31 |
| You're either with the ideological, dialectical, and the metaphysical or you're with the enemy | 38 |
| The hyperreality of ultra-capitalism | 41 |
| The meaningful meaninglessness of mass unculture | 44 |
| Hypertheatrical presentations of homo americanus unculture | 49 |
| Introduction to the plays | 51 |
| 1 The Hyperreality of the Western Frontier | 63 |
| Obaldia's 1965 Wind in the Branches of Sassafras (Du vent dans les branches de sassafras): the godliness of violence and capitalist consumption | 70 |
| Jean-Noël Fenwick's 1992 Calamity Jane ('Calamity Joan?'): the melodrama of unculture light | 74 |
| Catherine Anne's 2003 Joy of the Wind (Bonheur du vent): the stymied poetics of the uncultured western character and space | 85 |
| André Benedetto's 1975 Geronimo (Géronimo): the effects of unculture on everyman | 93 |
| Fernando Arrabal's 1974 On the Tightrope or Ballad of the Phantom Train (Sur le fil ou La Ballade du train fantôme): unculture as 'fascism light' | 100 |

| | | |
|----------|---|------------|
| | The Grand Magic Circus's 1974 From Moses to Mao: 5000 Years of Adventures and Love (De Moïse à Mao: 5.000 ans d'aventures et d'amour): the 'soft subversion' version of American unculture | 108 |
| | Claude Duparfait's 1998 Oklahoma Romance: A Job Offer (Idylle à Oklahoma: Une offre d'emploi): America as Kafkaesque utopian–dystopian theatrical space | 113 |
| 2 | Homo Americanus War and Violence | 121 |
| | Armand Gatti's 1967 V for Vietnam (V comme Vietnam) and Michel Vinaver's 11 September 2001 (11 Septembre 2001): a voyage into the hyperreal epicenter of Americano-global war and conflict | 126 |
| | Lost in space: American characters as creatures of a culture/dramaturgy of abstraction in Bernard-Marie Koltès's 1977 Sallinger | 137 |
| | André Bénédetto's 1968 Napalm : the hypertheatrical reality of imperial war | 150 |
| | Benedetto's 1972 Funeral Song for an American Soldier (Chant funèbre pour un soldat américain): the homo americanus unculture of fear | 161 |
| | Hélène Cixous's 1985 The Terrible but Unfinished Story of Norodom Sihanouk, King of Cambodia (L'Histoire terrible mais inachevée de Norodom Sihanouk roi du Cambodge): American unculture in the light of Cambodian cosmopolitan humanism | 164 |
| | Armand Gatti's 1966 Public Song Before Two Electric Chairs (Chant public devant deux chaises électriques): the totalitarian performance of US unculture on a global stage | 172 |
| | Pierre Halet's 1968 Little Boy : the cataclysmic psychological and uncultural fallout of the bomb | 182 |
| | Gérard Gelas's 2002 Guantanamo : a GI's human 'race' against uncultural fear | 191 |
| | Jean Audureau's 1977 In Memphis There's a Prodigiously Powerful Man (A Memphis il y a un homme d'une force prodigieuse): the unculture of benevolently demonic American gangsters | 196 |
| 3 | The Totalitarian Non-Tragedy of Americano-Global Business | 206 |
| | Americano-global business in post-1960 French drama | 210 |
| | Michel Vinaver: the dialectical Americano-global businessman-dramatist | 214 |

| | |
|---|------------|
| Overboard (Par-dessus bord; 1970): toilet paper and human relations in the abstract | 220 |
| It Bowls You Over (A la renverse; 1980): capitalism advances, society retreats, and the firm becomes the total space of life | 236 |
| High Places (L'Ordinaire; 1983): the survival of the 'crash' at the pinnacle of Americano-global business | 245 |
| King (1998): one vowel, one magnate, one system, two visions | 255 |
| 4 The (Supra-)Global Spectacle of American (Non-)Community | 266 |
| Michel Deutsch's Sunday (Dimanche; 1974): the dynamic-dialectical force of labor versus the fatal solitude of spectacle | 272 |
| Joël Jouanneau's The Crazies of Knoxville (Les Dingues de Knoxville; 1995): clowns without borders, home, or reference | 277 |
| Lars von Trier's Theatrical Film Dogville (2003): 'It Fakes a Village' | 284 |
| Conclusion | 294 |
| Blob, screen, and corn: final figures of the homo americanus hyperreal | 294 |
| Notes | 305 |
| Works Cited | 319 |
| Index | 327 |