

Contents

List of Figures and Tables	ix
Acknowledgments	x
List of Abbreviations	xii
1 Stealing the Fire: An Introduction to Emancipatory Communication Activism	1
Why people mobilize on media and technology issues	3
Two perspectives on communication as a site of struggle	6
What are emancipatory communication practices?	9
The study	11
The toolbox	14
The book ahead	18
2 Three Decades of Contention: The Roots of Contemporary Activism	19
1975–1985: Post-colonial demands for new world orders: NWICO	21
1985–1995: The civil society agenda on communications reform	29
1995–2005: The renaissance of communication struggles and emancipatory practices	34
Media activism today: Hacktivism, liberation technology, and cloud protesting	39
Low power to the people! A brief history of community broadcasting	43
Running servers for revolution: A brief history of radical tech activism	45
3 Movement Formation and Identity Building	49
Framing injustice	50
Motivations of emancipatory communication activists	52
Roots and muses of emancipatory communication activists	64
Collective identity between the “I” and the “we”	68
Many I, an enlarged we: Comparing movement formation	74
Summary	75
4 Organizational Forms	78
The evolution of organizations	79
Organizational principles as guiding stars	82

Playing for real: Organizational forms in practice	84
Internal democracy: Power, consensus, and decision-making	91
Queering technology activism	94
More than service providers: Activist projects and their users	100
Summary	103
5 Repertoires of Action: Mobilizing Inside, Outside, and Beyond	105
The weight of context	109
Tastes for tactics: Perception and repertoires of action	112
Insiders: Cooperating with power-holders	116
Outsiders: Dancing around the control rooms	121
Beyond-ers: The redefinition of power	125
Different games, the same struggle?	133
Summary	135
6 Like a Karst River: A Transnational Movement in the Making?	137
Thinking transnational	140
The rise of networks	144
A social movement dynamic?	156
The wishful thinking of a media and technology movement	160
Like a karst river: An analytical perspective	164
Summary	166
Epilogue	169
Not opposing but proposing: Lessons on emancipatory communication practices	170
Emancipatory communication practices versus media studies	176
From empirical research to theory building in social movement studies	179
Appendix: Methods and Epistemology of Engaged Research	182
Engaged research between action research and the “democratization of theorizing”	183
Methods of engaged research	184
Notes	190
References	203
Index	227