

CONTENTS

Abbreviations	viii
Preface and Acknowledgements	xi
Introduction	1
1 Theorising global policing	8
The problem of global policing	8
Policing and social theory	11
Policing and the social contract	13
Policing and political theory	15
Policing and law	17
Colonial policing	20
Types of transnational policing	22
Conclusion: policing an insecure world	27
2 Policing and the transnational-state-system	29
The changing morphology of the state	29
Jurisdictional sovereignty and functional diversity in policing	32
Agenda setting and transnational policing priorities	34
Legal discourse and law-making in international police co-operation	38
Developments in Europe	42
Developments in the United States	46
Multi-agency co-operation; the military, security and private sectors	49
Conclusion: policing the new world order	52
3 The global policing architecture	53
Global police agencies	53
Regional police agencies	64
National policing hubs	68
Private transnational policing	71
Glocal policing	73
Conclusion	76
4 The occupational subcultures of global policing	78
Police liaison officers and the transnational space between	78

Subcultural theory and policing	81
The parameters of policing subculture	84
Meet the global cops	87
The varied occupational character of global cops	93
Global policing, subculture and accountability	94
Conclusion: occupational policing subcultures – global thoughts/local acts	99
5 Global policing in practice	101
Policing transnational spaces	101
Policing border zones	102
Policing the oceans	104
Policing cyberspace	110
Policing mega-events	111
Policing transnational flows	113
Policing people: migrants, criminals, terrorists and other suspect populations	114
Policing drugs and guns	118
Policing money	120
Policing weak states: where the flows stop	123
Conclusion: the consequences of global policing	126
6 Conclusion: the global cops have arrived	128
Endnotes	137
Name Index	169
Subject Index	174