

Contents

Notes on Contributors	vii
Editorial Note
Joachim Horvath and Thomas Grundmann	xi
1. Introduction: Experimental Philosophy and Its Critics
Joachim Horvath and Thomas Grundmann	1
2. Intuitions about personal identity: An empirical study
Shaun Nichols and Michael Bruno	11
3. Philosophical temperament
Jonathan Livengood, Justin Sytsma, Adam Feltz, Richard Scheines and Edouard Machery	31
4. Are philosophers expert intuiters?
Jonathan M. Weinberg, Chad Gonnerman, Cameron Buckner and Joshua Alexander	49
5. Saving the doxastic account of intuitions
Christian Nimitz	75
6. Is experimental philosophy philosophically significant?
Joshua Alexander	95
7. Philosophical methodology: The current debate
Anand J. Vaidya	109
8. Intuitions and meaning divergence
Ernest Sosa	137
9. Intuitions and relativity
Kirk Ludwig	145
10. How (not) to react to experimental philosophy
Joachim Horvath	165
11. Some hope for intuitions: A reply to Weinberg
Thomas Grundmann	199
12. Philosophers and grammarians
Jens Kipper	229

CONTENTS

13. Intuitions, concepts, and imagination
Frank Hofmann	247
14. On the nature of thought experiments and a core motivation of experimental philosophy
Joseph Shieber	265
Index	283