

Contents

Professor J. C. Anene: a tribute	ix
General Editor's Note	xiii
Preface	xv
1 Introduction	I
Popular criticisms of colonial boundaries
General considerations of categories of African groups and frontiers
Indigenous states as 'umpires' in the Nigerian boundary negotiations
Extraneous factors
2 The Atlantic Littoral and Problems of the Hinterland	25
General observations
The British position on the West Coast before 1884
The Franco-German challenge
The importance of the Niger and the Benue
The hinterland 'anchorage'
The Atlantic termini settled, 1885
3 The Eastern Boundary—I	52
The boundary zone and its peoples
Indigenous political organization
European interpretation of local conditions
The boundary controversies:
the Akpayafe, Efik commercial empire, and Ekoi unity
The boundary agreements
Reflections on the boundary arrangement
The Southern Cameroons plebiscite

Contents

- 4 The Eastern Boundary—II 94
The indigenous background
The immigrants—the Jukun, the Chamba, the Batta, and the Fulani
The genesis of European interest
Anglo-German negotiations, 1886 and 1890-93
The effects of the boundary agreement
Amendments of the boundary based on the 1960 plebiscite
- 5 The Western Boundary—I 141
The Yoruba and the Ewe
Disintegration of the Oyo empire
The rise of Dahomey
The pattern of Anglo-French interest
The Scramble, 1883-89
The boundary settlement
Reflections on the boundary
- 6 The Western Boundary—II 190
The myth of Borgu unity
Realities of indigenous political life
Tentative boundary proposals
The race to Nikki and the German interlude
The Anglo-French crisis and settlement
British and French Borgu
Reflections on the boundary
- 7 The Northern Boundary 233
The Niger Sudan and its common features
The state systems
The rise of the Fulani empire
The controversial 'provinces' of the empire
The Bornu empire in the nineteenth century
Anglo-French negotiations and settlement
Boundary rectifications
The effects of the boundary arrangement

Contents

8	Conclusions	285
	Select Bibliography	300
	Index	313