Contents

Introduction —— 1

Chapter 1 – Why a cross-cultural approach is needed in order to try a different understanding of Second Temple pseudepigraphy —— 5

1 Introductory remarks —— 5
2 Nature and purpose of cross-cultural studies in Biblical scholarship —— 6
3 Terminology and definitions —— 9
3.1 Altered states of consciousness —— 9
3.2 Ecstasy —— 10
3.3 Possession —— 10
3.4 Automatisms —— 11
3.5 Hypnosis —— 11
4 Automatic writing and ecstatic practices in recent scholarship —— 12
5 The meaning of pseudepigraphy —— 13
6 Outline of scholarship about late Second Temple apocalyptic pseudepigraphy —— 16
6.1 The concept of corporate identity as applied to apocalyptic pseudepigraphy —— 16
6.2 Recent discussions on apocalyptic pseudepigraphy regarding identification with alleged authors —— 21

Chapter 2 – How much is automatic writing useful as a hermeneutic tool? —— 34

1 Automatic writing as hypnotic phenomenon —— 34
1.1 Non-mystical automatic writing —— 39
1.2 Writings in other languages —— 40
2 Multiple-personality phenomena and automatic writing —— 42
3 Automatic writing as possession —— 48
4 Past-lives therapy, hypnosis and identity with past characters —— 52
5 Summary —— 57

Chapter 3 – Automatic writing in modern-day Kardecism —— 58

1 Introductory remarks to the chapter —— 58
2 Brief introduction to the development of Brazilian Kardecism —— 58
2.1 A survey of Kardecist doctrine —— 60

Bibliografische Informationen
http://d-nb.info/1035523604

digitalisiert durch DEUTSCHE NATIONAL BIBLIOTHEK

2.2 Kardecism in Brazil — 63
3 Kardecist preparatory processes for automatic writing — 66
3.1 Automatic writing and mediumship training — 66
3.2 Preparation and meaning of automatic writing in Brazilian Kardecism — 68
3.3 Genre and personal identity of the spiritual author — 79
4 Editorial mediation of psychography — 80
5 Two modern-day Kardecist apocalypses, and how their alleged authors are portrayed — 83
6 Summary — 85

Chapter 4 – Automatic writing in Antiquity regarding religious texts — 86
1 Introductory remarks to the chapter — 86
2 Survey of chosen passages — 87
2.1 Full description of the narrator's identity — 88
2.2 Other descriptions of the narrator's identity — 93
2.3 Passages with smaller number of indications — 95
3 Authorship of apocalyptic texts and divine manifestations — 99
3.1 Brief discussion — 99
3.2 Divine interference manifest in the texts — 99
4 Possible evidence for automatic writing in three specific ancient cases — 101
4.1 Writings from a deceased prophet via human hands: the case of 2Chr 21 — 101
4.2 Texts handed down directly from above: the Book of Elchasai — 104
4.3 Fraud and satire: written instructions for the Greek credulous — 106
5 Summary — 107

Chapter 5 – Philo, Josephus and 4Ezra: the main testimonies for inspired writing during the Second Temple Period — 109
1 Introductory remarks to the chapter — 109
2 Survey of chosen passages — 110
2.1 Philo of Alexandria — 111
2.2 Josephus — 121
2.3 4Ezra — 123
3 Issues at stake in cross-cultural comparison regarding the three authors — 127
3.1 Knowledge and scholarship as essential issues — 127

3.2 More sophisticated devices in terms of preparation versus rationalizing — 128
4 Summary — 129

Chapter 6 – Considerations on religious pseudepigraphy in Antiquity — 131
1 Introductory remarks to the chapter — 131
2 A survey of chosen names for apocalyptic pseudepigraphy — 132
3 Pseudepigraphy and forgery — 134
3.1 Central elements to the notion of literary forgery — 134
3.2 Intention of fraud — 135
4 Ancient testimonies in individual cases of religious pseudepigraphy caught in the act of writing — 138
4.1 Tertullian — 139
4.2 Salvian of Marseille — 140
5 Psychical phenomena related to pseudepigraphy — 143
6 Authorial ascribing, orthodoxy and wisdom — 146
7 Summary — 149

Conclusion — 151
1 General remarks on the possible similarities between Second Temple pseudepigraphy and Kardecism — 151
2 Arguments supportive of actual identification between mechanical writer and apocalyptic visionary — 151
2.1 Effects described — 151
2.2 Choosing of names — 154
2.3 Parallels in other identification-type mystical experiences — 155
2.4 Parallels in other identification-type non-mystical experiences — 157
2.5 Unmatching styles — 158
3 Arguments against actual identification between mechanical writer and apocalyptic visionary — 159
3.1 Vagueness of the essential link, reincarnation and manipulating of the dead — 159
3.2 Weight of stereotypical descriptions — 160
3.3 Weak evidence provided by similar hypnotic-like descriptions — 162
3.4 Uncertainty of OT passages — 162
3.5 Psychography is never intended as deception or confusing evidence — 163
4 Final remarks — 164

Bibliography — 168

Index for Biblical Sources — 183

Index for Pseudepigraphical Sources — 186

Index for Classical Sources — 189

General Index — 191