

Table of contents

Introduction, or another story of narrative	1
Mari Hatavara, Lars-Christer Hydén and Matti Hyvärinen
Exploring the narrative turns
Travelling metaphors, transforming concepts	13
Matti Hyvärinen
Why narrative is here to stay: A return to origins	43
Mark Freeman
To the narrative turn and back:
The political impact of storytelling in feminism	63
Olivia Guaraldo
Travelling with narrative: From text to body	83
Paul John Eakin
Philosophical underpinnings of the narrative turn in theory and fiction	93
Hanna Meretoja
Travelling between fiction and non-fiction
Fact and fiction: Exploring the narrative mind	121
Jens Brockmeier
Broken or unnatural? On the distinction of fiction in non-conventional first person narration	141
Stefan Iversen
Making sense in autobiography	163
Mari Hatavara
“Unnatural” narratives? The case of second-person narration	179
Jarmila Mildorf
Storytelling on the go: Breaking news as a travelling narrative genre	201
Alexandra Georgakopoulou

Travelling from body to story

Towards an embodied theory of narrative and storytelling 227

Lars-Christer Hydén

Fractured narratives: Psychology's fragmented narrative psychology 245

Brian Schiff

Broken stories: Narrative vs. narration in travelling theories of cultural trauma 265

Kuisma Korhonen

Concluding reflections

Twists and turns: The circulation of narrative concepts across disciplines and cultures 287

Andreea Deciu Ritivoi

List of contributors 303

Index 307