

Contents

Preface · vii

*Introduction: 'How It Was', 'What Went Wrong?', or
'From Consensus to Divided Society and Half-way Back?'* ix

Part One: Social Consensus 1945–57

- 1 British Journey 3
- 2 That Topic All-Absorbing: Class 17
- 3 The Welfare State 27
- 4 Hearth, Home, and Street Corner 40
- 5 The Culture of Austerity 52
- 6 Consensus Re-examined 73

Part Two: Roads to Freedom 1958–73

- 7 Affluence, Appliances, and Work 85
- 8 Critiques, Boutiques, and Pop 94
- 9 The End of Victorianism 113
- 10 Social Structure and Social Strains 124
- 11 False Optimism 141

Part Three: The Time of Troubles 1973–82

- 12 Gloom on the Man-Made Island 1973–80 151
- 13 Class, Race, and Nationalism 166
- 14 Living Standards 187

- 15 'Gimme a Man After Midnight' 202
16 Tolerance and Confrontation 213
17 The Winter of Discontent and the Summer of the Fire Bombs 227

Part Four: Privatization, Polarization and IT 1982–9

- 18 The Processes of Change 235
19 The Geography of 'Post-Industrialization': Mainland Britain and Northern Ireland 243
20 The 'Enterprise Economy' 261
21 Workers, Yuppies and Hooligans 275
22 Social Policy and Social Life 298
23 The Hallmark of a Civilization: 'An Ace Caff with Quite a Nice Museum Attached' 316

Part Five: A Society at Odds with Itself 1989–97

- 24 Divisive Bequests: Cultural and Political 335
25 Social Reform with a Sting 358
26 Class, Race, Identity 382

Part Six: A Faltering Return Towards Consensus? 1997–2002

- 27 The Odd Shape of the Nation 419
28 Service with a Scowl 436
29 The Pleasures and Pains of Life 453

Notes on Sources and Guide to Further Reading 469

Index 473