

Contents

About the Author	xii
Acknowledgements	xiii
PART 1 THE PROCESS OF ACADEMIC WRITING	1
1 The Research Thesis	3
Getting the most out of yourself – why do you want to write a research thesis?	3
The nature and varieties of a research thesis	5
Shorter doctoral theses	7
Similarities and differences between a master’s and a doctoral thesis	8
The thesis as research training	10
The characteristics of a good thesis	12
The title of the thesis	14
Academic writing as a genre	15
General university requirements for a thesis	17
Quality and funding bodies	18
Consulting research theses	19
2 The Intellectual Content of the Thesis	21
The thesis as an original contribution to knowledge	22
The different kinds of data and evidence which can be included in a thesis	24
Working within a paradigm and incorporating a theoretical perspective	28
The relationship between ontology, epistemology and methodology	30
Testing a hypothesis or developing a theory	32
Exercising caution in making truth claims	33
Presenting alternative viewpoints	34
Developing a coherent argument	35
Intellectual content of a shorter thesis	36

3	Organizing Your Work	39
	Who is the audience for your thesis?	39
	The length of the thesis and of individual chapters	41
	Practical matters – typing and organizing the developing thesis	43
	Self-imposed writing targets	45
	Time management and maintaining progress	46
	Accumulating your list of references	47
	The order of writing the thesis	49
	Self-motivation	50
4	The Role of the Supervisor	52
	The functions of your supervisor or supervisory team	53
	Selecting a supervisor or being allocated one	54
	Appreciating your supervisor’s perspective	55
	Working well with your supervisor	56
	What to do if you are unhappy with your supervisor	58
	Negotiating targets and deadlines	59
	Arranging a pattern of tutorials	60
	Advice on methodology and design	60
	Advice on structuring the thesis	61
	Reading sections of the thesis as it is written	63
	Selecting the team of examiners for the viva voce	64
	The needs of overseas students	65
	A checklist for supervisors	66
5	Your Role as a Student	68
	Initial worries and concerns	68
	Talking to current and former research students	70
	Reading research theses	72
	Understanding your supervisors	72
	Helping your supervisor to help you	75
	Developing a pattern of work	75
	Attending conferences, courses and seminars	76
6	Grammar, Punctuation and Conventions of Academic Writing	78
	First person or third person?	79
	Gender-neutral language	81
	Layout for quotations	83

Digital-based referencing and citation packages	84
The Harvard system of referencing	84
Referencing websites	88
Use of notes and footnotes	88
Non-English terms and expressions	89
English and American spellings	90
Abbreviations	91
Italicizing and capitalization	91
The use of hyphens, dashes, numerals and the apostrophe	92
Consistency, consistency and, above all, consistency!	92
7 Layout of the Thesis	95
Page layout	95
Use of headings, subheadings and titles	96
Layout of contents pages	98
Frequency of quotations	100
Use of bullet points and formatting	101
Including tables and figures in the thesis	102
Listing references and including a bibliography	104
The use of appendices	105
Consistency, consistency and starting as you mean to go on	107
PART 2 WRITING YOUR THESIS	109
8 The Preliminary Pages and the Introduction	111
Title page, abstract and contents	112
Tables, figures, abbreviations, key terms and acknowledgements	114
Why is this particular topic being researched?	115
What is the significance of the topic?	116
Explaining the context of the research	117
The background of the researcher	117
Where is the research being conducted and why?	119
The research aims	120
The research objectives	122
9 The Literature Review	124
(i) General issues concerning the literature review	124
The purpose of the literature review	124

Contents

Style of writing for the literature review	127
Subdividing the available literature	129
Dealing with an apparent lack of relevant literature	130
Making a selection from a wide variety of literature	131
Employing a range of literature	132
Literature from the Internet	134
How old may the literature be?	135
(ii) Online literature searching	136
Searching for research articles	136
Searching for theses	137
Using 'grey' literature	138
Online library catalogues	139
10 Methodology	141
The relationship between epistemology and methodology	142
Relating choice of methodology to the aims of the thesis	144
The overall research design	145
Pilot studies	147
The selection of the sample	149
The process by which the data is collected	152
Data analysis	154
Strengths and limitations of the methodology	156
Writing about ethical issues	157
The issue of incentives in research	161
Should the methodology have been different?	162
Ethical justifications of research	162
11 The Data Analysis Chapters	166
Defining a list of chapter headings	166
Selection from the data	168
Writing about the analysis of qualitative data	169
Writing about grounded theory analysis	173
Examples of the presentation of qualitative data	175
Writing about the analysis of quantitative data	177
Presenting quantitative data	178
Placing sample data in the appendices	179
12 The Conclusion	181
Drawing together the threads of the argument	181
Examining whether the aims have been achieved	182

Emphasizing the contribution to knowledge	183
Developing practical recommendations	184
Limitations of the thesis	185
Possibilities for further research	186
A reflexive account of the research process	187
Writing the abstract	189
A checklist for the conclusion	191
13 Completing the Thesis	192
Producing the first complete draft	192
Checking for coherence and internal consistency	194
Proofreading	195
Checks to be made by the supervisory team	197
Checks to be made by supervisors, and those to be made by students	199
Temporary binding	200
Procedure for submitting the thesis	200
14 Publishing Findings During Preparation of the Thesis	202
Advantages and disadvantages	202
Selecting an element of the findings	205
Selecting a suitable academic journal	206
Following style notes	207
The refereeing process	208
Checking upon the progress of your article	209
15 The Oral Examination	210
The role of your supervisor	210
The role of the internal and external examiners	212
Strategies for rereading the thesis	212
Anticipating questions	213
The structure of the viva	215
Coping strategies for questions	216
Defending the thesis	217
Overall strategy for the viva	218
Possible results of the viva	222
References and Further Reading	224
Index	227