

Contents

Notes on the Contributors	vi
Introduction
Simon Green	vii
Part I Research-based Critical Analysis
1 Learning and Teaching Strategies
Michael Grenfell	1
2 Learner Autonomy: Why Foreign Languages Should Occupy a Central Role in the Curriculum
David Little	24
3 Motivation and the Learners of Modern Languages
Gary Chambers	46
Part II The Current Educational Context
4 The Primary Sector
Ann Gregory	77
5 Modern Languages within a Policy for Language in Education
Christopher Brumfit	94
6 Higher Education
Anthony Lodge	105
Part III Classroom Practice
7 Logging on to Learning: ICT, Modern Languages and Real Communicative Classrooms?
Philip Hood	124
8 Vocational Languages: An Analysis of Current Practice and Suggestions for a Way Forward
John Thorogood	138
9 Meeting the Challenge: Developing the 3Cs Curriculum
Do Coyle	158
Conclusion: Creative Thinking About a New Modern Languages Pedagogy
Kim Brown	183