

Contents

PREFACE	xi
1
Introduction	1
Postwar Urban Growth in Historical Context	4
2
National Forces Affecting the Spatial Distribution of Population and Economic Activity in the Post-World-War-II Era	7
The National Rate of Employment Growth	9
The National Rate of Civilian Labor Force Growth	12
Other Forces Contributing to Population Redistribution	17
The U.S. Migration Experience, 1947-1975	21
Summary	26

3

Interregional Shifts in the Location of Population and Employment	29
The Behavior of Regional Employment and Population Changes, 1947-1977: The Historical Record	29
Regional Shifts in Manufacturing Employment	36
The Causal Linkages between Population and Employment	40
Summary	46
Appendix	47

4

Metropolitan Growth and Migration: The Patterns Since 1950	51
The Sample Metropolitan Areas and the Data	52
Urban Employment Growth, 1950-1970	57
Urban Nonagricultural Employment Growth, 1970-1975	62
Growth of Urban Manufacturing Employment, 1950-1970	66
Metropolitan Unemployment Rates, 1950-1975	69
Growth of Income and Earnings	73
Metropolitan Migration and Economic Growth	79
The Rural to Urban Migration Turnaround	90
Summary and Conclusions	95
Appendix	96

5

Changing Intrametropolitan Location Patterns of Labor Force and Economic Activity	105
The Data	107
Changes in the Location of Urban Labor Force and Employment	112
Suburban and Central City Income Growth	132
Location Patterns of Intrametropolitan Movers and Metropolitan In-Migrants	135
Summary and Conclusions	139

6

A Model of Metropolitan Growth and Migration	143
Simultaneous-Equations Models of Migration	145
The Theory	148
Specification of the Model	151
Appendix	165

7
Metropolitan Growth and Migration: Estimation of the Model	169
Estimation Procedures	170
Model Estimation	171
Appendix	181
8
A Model of Intrametropolitan Location of Employment, Housing, and Labor Force	183
The Model of Intrametropolitan Location	184
The Data	191
The Empirical Results	191
Summary and Conclusions	201
Appendix	204
9
Thoughts on the Policy Aspects of Migration and Urban Employment Growth	209
The Rationale for Public Intervention	210
Selected Employment Policy Options	212
REFERENCES	223
SUBJECT INDEX	231