

Contents

List of Illustrations	ix
Acknowledgements	x
Introduction: Exposure	1
Part I Hospitable Representations
Introduction to Part I	29
1 Narrator as Host in Graham Swift's The Light of Day	35
2 'Communicable Empathy': Reading Caryl Phillips's A Distant Shore	49
Conclusion to Part I	67
Part II Refugees on Film
Introduction to Part II	71
3 Screening Asylum: Pawel Pawlikowski's Last Resort	75
4 States of Belonging: Alfonso Cuarón's Children of Men	92
Conclusion to Part II	112
Part III Staging Asylum
Introduction to Part III	117
5 Authenticating Asylum: Kay Adshead's The Bogus Woman	123
6 Europe, History and Myth in Timberlake Wertenbaker's Credible Witness	141
Conclusion to Part III	159
Part IV Asylum in a Global Era
Introduction to Part IV	163
7 Globalization: Crisis and Celebration in Chris Cleave's The Other Hand	168

8	Cosmopolitan Representation: Kate Clanchy's Antigona and Me	185
	Conclusion to Part IV	206
	Conclusion: An Uncertain Belonging	208
	Notes	214
	Works Cited	223
	Index	235