

Contents

1	Introduction.....	9
1.1	Where a Mirror Ought to Be	10
1.2	Conceptual Framework	15
1.3	Choice of Metaphor	19
1.3.1	Umberto Eco	22
1.3.2	Plato, the Bible, and Stendhal.....	24
1.4	Choice of Authors	29
1.4.1	Status and Relationship.....	29
1.4.2	Time/Tradition	33
1.4.3	Choice of Texts	36
2	America, Seen Through Photographs, Darkly: The Desegregation of Representation in Richard Wright's 12 Million Black Voices	39
2.1	Introduction	39
2.2	The Reception of 12 Million Black Voices	42
2.3	The Story	53
2.4	12 Million Black Voices and the Documentary Tradition.....	62
2.4.2	Documentary Photography	67
2.5	American Faces and the Face of America	73
2.6	12 Million Black Voices	79
2.6.1	Black and White Photography in "How Bigger Was Born"	86
2.6.2	12 Million Black Voices as a Response to the Face-to-Face Rhetoric of Depression Era Documentary.....	90
2.6.3	Rewriting Documentary: The Mirror Passage.....	101
3	Mirrors of Self-Conscious Confusion: Reading Anamorphoses of American Reality – James Baldwin's Early Essays.....	115
3.1	Introduction: The Mirror of the Other	115
3.2	Historical Background	122
3.3	The Reception of James Baldwin's Work	126
3.4	The Essayist as a Personal Witness	135
3.5	Mirroring (Himself in) the Prose of his Predecessor: Baldwin's Revision of Richard Wright	142
3.5.1	"Everybody's Protest Novel"	144
3.5.2	"Many Thousands Gone"	159
3.6	Baldwin's Concept of Reality.....	168
3.7	Integrating Different Points of View	172
3.8	Conclusion.....	177

4	Ralph Ellison: Illuminations of Black Invisibility in the Literary Theatrum Catoptricum. The Mirror Metaphor in "Twentieth-Century Fiction" and Invisible Man	179
4.1	Introduction	179
4.2	Reception.....	181
4.3	Historical Background	188
4.4	"Twentieth-Century Fiction and the Black Mask of Humanity": Looking for a Glimpse of Himself.....	193
4.4.1	Literary Catoptrics	193
4.4.2	The Segregation of the Word.....	201
4.4.3	Looking Backwards to Images of Blackness in 19 th Century Fiction	208
4.5	The Victory of Conscious Perception: Invisible Man	215
4.5.1	The Prologue.....	217
4.5.2	The Mirrors in the Main Part of the Novel: Reflected Acts..	232
4.5.3	An Act of Creation: The White God in the Rear-View Mirror.....	240
4.5.4	Controlling Acts: Dr. Bledsoe as Minstrel Man.....	252
4.5.5	Duplicitous Acts: Invisible Man's Imaginary Uplift	257
4.6	A Light Flooded Room Without Mirrors	262
5	Conclusion	267
	Literature	273