

CONTENTS

PREFACE: WHO AM I?	XI
THANKS AND ACKNOWLEDGMENTS	XIII
INTRODUCTION	I
What's eating the exile? . . . . .	1
The period . . . . .	5
I CONTEXTS AND METHODOLOGY	7
Why Lorre, Lugosi, Veidt? . . . . .	7
Journey 1: Béla Lugosi and the end of unrestricted immigration . . . . .	11
Journey 2: Peter Lorre and self-censorship in Hollywood . . . . .	15
Journey 3: Conrad Veidt and the early years of the Second World War . . . . .	20
The theoretical context . . . . .	27
Journeys of Desire . . . . .	30
The World According to Hollywood . . . . .	32
An Accented Cinema . . . . .	36
An imagined binary . . . . .	38
The Structure . . . . .	43
2 IF THAT'S ME, THEN WHO AM I?	47
Stereotype, identity and displacement . . . . .	49
The exilic posthuman body . . . . .	52
A zoo of posthumanities . . . . .	58
Can't join them? Beat them! . . . . .	63
Jaffar and the limitations of willpower . . . . .	64
A tale of two thieves . . . . .	70
White Zombie : the failure of exilic discursive power . . . . .	78
3 HOW THE DEAD LIVE OR THE EXILIC SPACE	87
The exile moves in: Dracula and the exilic space par excellence . . . . .	92
Exilic interior design . . . . .	99
The exilic lair as space of relief . . . . .	105
Permanent grafts onto transitory spaces . . . . .	112
A brief recap of the chapter . . . . .	123

4	THE MADNESS OF THE EXILE	127
	Madness sets in . . . . .	128
	Mad exile, Mad Love . . . . .	129
	The Invisible Ghost . . . . .	138
	Medical experiments in the Rue Morgue . . . . .	143
	The revenge of the mad exile . . . . .	150
	Splitting selves . . . . .	153
	CONCLUSION	163
	Tarzan and all-too perfect integration . . . . .	166
	Muscle-bound and already dead . . . . .	168
	Plus ça change... . . . .	173
	BIBLIOGRAPHY AND REFERENCES	177
	FILMOGRAPHY	185
	Peter Lorre, Hollywood films 1935-1950 . . . . .	185
	Béla Lugosi, Hollywood films from Dracula , 1931-1956 . . . . .	187
	Conrad Veidt, English-language films 1932-1943 . . . . .	189
	INDEX	191