

Full contents

List of figures	ix
List of tables	x
Foreword to the second, revised edition	xi
Foreword to the first edition	xv
1 Introduction: why institutions matter	1
1.1 Why do institutions matter?	2
1.2 The record of economic growth	9
1.3 Explaining economic growth	17
Part I Foundations
2 Definitions: economics, institutions, order and policy	31
2.1 Basic definitions	32
2.2 The precursors of contemporary institutional economics	38
3 Human behaviour	46
3.1 The knowledge problem	47
3.2 Types of behaviour, cognition and bounded rationality: deciphering reality	56
3.3 Motivation: by love, convincing, command, or self-interest	64
3.4 The principal-agent problem	69
4 Fundamental values	74
4.1 Shared, underlying values	75
4.2 Freedom, justice and equity	82
4.3 Security, stability, peace and prosperity	87
4.4 Conservation of the environment	95
5 Institutions: individual rules	100
5.1 Overview: rules and enforcement	101
5.2 Internal institutions	108
5.3 External institutions and the protective function of government	118
5.4 The functions of institutions	128

5.5	The essential properties of effective institutions	133
5.6	The costs of interaction and coordination	136
6	Institutional systems and social order	142
6.1	Social systems and hierarchies of rules	143
6.2	Two kinds of social order	152
6.3	Perceptions of order influence public policy	165
6.4	Rule systems as a central part of culture	173
6.5	Social order and human values: the rule of law	178
Part II Applications
7	The institutional foundations of capitalism	185
7.1	Capitalism: property rights and private autonomy	186
7.2	Essential characteristics of property rights	192
7.3	Using property rights: free contracts and transaction costs	207
7.4	Relational contracts, self-enforcement, and the judiciary	218
7.5	The consequences of capitalism	222
7.6	Institutions, which secure the services of money and avert financial crises	232
8	The dynamics of competition	243
8.1	Competition: rivalry and choice	244
8.2	Competition from the suppliers' perspective	260
8.3	Restrictions of economic competition	271
8.4	The competitive system	278
9	Economic organizations	282
9.1	Economic organizations: definition and purposes	283
9.2	Organization costs, relational contracts, and hold-up risks	292
9.3	Ownership and control: the principal-agent problem in business	296
10	Collective action: public policy	311
10.1	Public versus private choice	313
10.2	The functions of government	323
10.3	A liberal model of public policy: order policy	346
10.4	Failures of the social democratic experiment	352
10.5	Political action and rent seeking	361
10.6	Controlling the political agents: authority, rules, openness	365
10.7	Political and economic constitutions	372

11	The international dimension	380
11.1	The growing significance of the international dimension	381
11.2	The institutional framework of international exchanges	392
11.3	Policy issues: international economic order	407
11.4	International monetary arrangements	414
11.5	International migration and cultural integration	422
11.6	Strengthening the open economic order	423
12	The evolution of institutions	426
12.1	Historic reminiscences – the long view on institutional change	427
12.2	Internal institutions: evolution within cultural values and meta rules	435
12.3	Changing the external institutions: political entrepreneurship	440
12.4	Outside challenges: institutional competition	445
12.5	Competitive federalism	451
12.6	The constitution of freedom as a framework for evolution	454
13	Socialism versus capitalism – system transformations	457
13.1	The Soviet experiment and its demise in retrospect	458
13.2	The evolution of socialism in China	473
14	Economic freedom and development	483
14.1	Some growth comparisons	484
14.2	Economic freedom and the consequences	486
14.3	Economic freedom and development	490
14.4	East Asia: institutions and modernization	498
14.5	The spread of reforms	504
14.6	Microeconomic (institutional) reform in mature economies	508
14.7	Western civilization and the ‘primacy of politics’	517
	Epilogue: Institutional versus neoclassical economics	525
	Appendix: “I, Pencil”	536
	Bibliography	542
	Index	565