

Contents

List of Figures	ix
Acknowledgments	xi
Introduction: Russia and America in Travel Writing Between 1865 and 1905: Historical Background and Theoretical Concerns	1
1 Russian Tourists View Postbellum America	14
2 “Innocent” Encounters with Russia, or Americans at Play	53
3 Russian “Marvels” and American “Originals”: The View of Russia and America during the Last Two Decades of the Nineteenth Century	92
4 The Fruits of Travel: Russians and Americans View Each Other Through Tales of Ethnic Passing in Korolenko’s Bez Iazyka and Abraham Cahan’s “Theodore and Martha” and The White Terror and the Red	125
Conclusion	152
Notes	157
Bibliography	177
Index	187