

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments xiii

1. HOW EMPTY IS MAINSTREAM PHILOSOPHY? 1

1. Most Recent Mainstream Proposals Are Concretely Empty Ideas 4
2. A Working Idea of Concrete Reality 10
3. Observing the Concretely Empty in Some Recent Mainstream Philosophy 11
4. Our Central Distinction and Three That Have Been Philosophically Salient 16
5. The Concretely Empty, the Analytically Empty and Mainstream Philosophy 20

2. PROMISING EXAMPLES OF CONCRETELY SUBSTANTIAL PHILOSOPHY 25

1. Some Pretty Promising Examples of Concretely Substantial Philosophy 25
2. The Substantial Scientiphicalism of Mainstream Philosophy 31
3. Memory, History and Emptiness 36
4. Various Specifications of Scientiphicalism and Various Departures from Scientiphicalism 39
5. Interactionist Entity Dualism and the Problem of Causal Pairings 42

6. Exploring Philosophical Thoughts that May Be Analytically Empty Ideas 46
3. THINKERS AND WHAT THEY CAN THINK ABOUT: EMPTY ISSUES AND INDIVIDUALISTIC POWERS 47
1. Language, Thought and History 49
 2. Thinking about “The External World” 55
 3. Earth, Twin Earth and History 60
 4. The Banality of Successfully Investigating Unfamiliar Individuals 65
 5. A Concretely Substantial Possibility: Individualistically Directed Powers 68
 6. The Propensity to Acquire Individualistic Powers and Its Historical Manifestation 70
 7. A Concretely Substantial Possibility: Individualistically Directed Mental Powers 73
 8. Generalistic Propensities to Acquire Real-kind Directed Mental Powers 75
 9. Wishful Blindness to Emptiness: Putnam’s “Transcendental” Pronouncement 76
 10. Reading Modal Claims Substantially and Widening Our Philosophical Horizons 78
4. THE ORIGINS OF MATERIAL INDIVIDUALS: EMPTY ISSUES AND SEQUENTIALISTIC POWERS 81
1. The Origin of a Particular Wooden Table 83
 2. Some Thoughts about Tables and Some Thoughts about Shmables 86
 3. Origination Conditions, Persistence Conditions, and Boxing a Logical Compass 89
 4. A Tenet of Scientiphicalism: Basic Individuals Have No “Memory-like” Propensity 91
 5. How a Wooden Table Could Have First Been Made from a Hunk of Ice 94
 6. Tood and Tice, a Table First Made of Wood and a Table First Made of Ice 97
 7. Using Modal Terms Substantially: The Case of Determinism 99
 8. Distinctive Material Objects and These Objects’ Distinctive Matter 100
 9. Sequentialistically Propensitized Concrete Particulars 104

10. Wooden Tables, Ice, and Sequentialistically Propensitized Concrete Particulars 106

5. THE PERSISTENCE OF MATERIAL INDIVIDUALS: EMPTY ISSUES AND SELF-DIRECTED PROPENSITY 109
 1. Material Sculptures and Pieces of Matter 109
 2. Are There Inconveniently Persisting Material Individuals? 114
 3. Pieces, Lumps and Hunks: A Problematic Plethora of Persisting Individuals? 118
 4. Is There a Plethora of Extraordinary Persisting Individuals? 120
 5. Ordinary and Not So Ordinary Persisting Material Individuals 122
 6. Using These Sentences Differently and Expressing Substantial Ideas 125
 7. Fundamentals of Fundamental Material Persistents 129

6. EMPTY DEBATES ABOUT MATERIAL MATTERS 134
 1. Matter Distributed Particulately, but Not Even a Single Material Individual? 136
 2. Matter Distributed Particulately, but Only a Single Material Individual? 137
 3. Matter and Material Objects: Salient Positions on Empty Questions 138
 4. The Debate about Complex Material Individuals 139
 5. An Exploration of the Salient Debate: Popular Paraphrases, Problematic Parallels 143
 6. Complex Material Individuals and Arrangements of Simple Material Individuals 145
 7. Mereological Sums of Simple Material Individuals: Fusions, Fusions Everywhere 146
 8. Sums of Simple Physical Entities and Complex Ordinary Material Individuals 149
 9. Four Distinct Sorts of Spatial Inhabitants: Material Mereological Sums, Material Arrangements, Complex Material Objects, and (Complex) Ordinary Individuals 150

- WORLDY APPENDIX 156
 - Are There Any Concrete Worlds, Including Even the Actual World? 156

- 7. INDIVIDUALS, PROPERTIES AND TIME: A FEW SUBSTANTIAL THOUGHTS AND MANY EMPTY IDEAS 160
1. Are There Really Any Properties or Are There Only All the Propertied Individuals? 162
 2. The Temporal, the Empty and the Substantial: First Part 170
 3. The Temporal, the Empty and the Substantial: Second Part 175
 4. Is There a Real Need That Properties (Alone) Suitably Serve? First Part 179
 5. Is There a Real Need That Properties (Alone) Suitably Serve? Second Part 182
- 8. WHAT WILL BECOME OF US: EMPTY ISSUES AND SUBSTANTIAL SPECULATIONS 187
1. Locke's Proposed Persons 190
 2. Locke's Lame Legacy 192
 3. Beyond Locke, but Not beyond Philosophical Thoughts Both Incorrect and Empty 197
 4. So-Called Commonsensical Materialism 202
 5. So-Called Commonsensical Materialism and the Mental Problems of the Many 204
 6. Might You Be a Quite Simple Physical Thing? If So, What Will Become of You? 208
 7. Articulating Our Argument for a Substantial Dualist View of Ourselves 211
 8. How an Immaterial Soul May, or May Not, Survive the Death of Its Body 215
 9. If We Should Become Disembodied Souls, Will We Be Experiencing Souls? 216
 10. If We Become Experiencing Disembodied Souls, Will We Be Fortunate Souls? 218
- 9. WHEN WILL THERE BE SOME SERIOUS NEW SUBSTANTIAL PHILOSOPHY? 223
1. Concretely Substantial Ideas about Mutually Isolated Concrete Worlds: First Part 225
 2. Concretely Substantial Ideas about Mutually Isolated Concrete Worlds: Second Part 231
 3. Some Substantial Philosophical Thoughts about Actual Concrete Reality 234

4. Scientific Philosophers and Serious New Substantial
Philosophy 239
5. Philosophy May Mine and Refine What Even the Most Ambitious
Sciences Produce 240
6. Concrete Reality and Modest Philosophy 243

Bibliography 247

Index 255