

Contents

Preface	vii
Part One: the field and the endeavor Sally Fincher and Marian Petre
1. Mapping the Territory	1
2. A Preface to Pragmatics	9
3. Post Significant Questions that Can Be Answered Empirically	19
4. Link Research to Relevant Theory	31
5. Provide a Coherent Explicit Chain of Reasoning	39
6. Use methods that Permit Direct Investigation of the Question	43
7. Replicate and Generalize Across Sstudies	61
8. Disclose Research to Encourage Professional Scrutiny and Critique	75
Part One References and Notes	77
Part Two: perspectives and approaches
Introduction	83
1. Misconceptions and Attitudes that Interfere with Learning to Program Michael Clancy	85
2. Critical Enquiry in CS Education Tony Clear	101
3. Programming Environments for Novices Mark Guzdial	127
4. Research on Learning to Design Software W. Michael McCracken	155
5. Learning to Program: Schema creation, application and evaluation Robert S. Rist	175
6. Algorithm Visualization John T. Stasko and Christopher D. Hundhausen	199
List of Contributors	229
Index	231