

TABLE OF CONTENTS

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS.....	9
-----------------------	---

GENERAL INTRODUCTION	11
----------------------------	----

PART ONE “Poetry makes nothing happen”: Ethics and Literary Criticism

Introduction to Part One	25
--------------------------------	----

I “Stories are our major moral teachers”: Towards an Ethical Criticism	31
--	----

- 1 Choosing the Right Company: Authors and Characters as Friends36
- 2 Gaining Practical Wisdom: Literature as Moral Philosophy.....42
- 3 Accepting the Limits of Language: Reading as an Experience of Undecidability48
- 4 Re-inventing Oneself: Literature as a Source of New Vocabularies.....55

II “Poetically man dwells”: Towards Ethics in Lyric Poetry.....	65
---	----

- 1 Lyric versus Ethics: The Paradigm of Modernist Aestheticism71
- 2 Epi- versus Graphi-Reading: The Problem of Language in Ethical Criticism78
- 3 World-Disclosure and Living Metaphors: Beyond Epi- versus Graphi-Reading.....86
- 4 Ethics and Lyric Language: Beyond Meta-Ethical Considerations.....96

Conclusion to Part One.....	103
-----------------------------	-----

PART TWO “La Poésie ne rythmera plus l’action, elle sera en avant”: Ethics and French Symbolism

Introduction to Part Two	107
--------------------------------	-----

III “Trouver du nouveau”: Charles Baudelaire	115
--	-----

- 1 “Par un décret des puissances suprêmes”: The Poet’s Ethical Task.....120
- 2 “Je cherche le vide, et le noir, et le nu”: Poetry as Word-Disclosure.....126
- 3 “T’infuser mon venin, ma sœur!”: Aesthetic Renewal as Moral Critique131
- 4 Baudelaire as a “parfait comédien”: Ethical Reflection under Censorship138

IV “Trouver une langue”: Arthur Rimbaud147

1 “Il dort dans le soleil”: Unveiling the Rhetorics of War151

2 “Ils se ressentent si bien vivre”: Challenging the Discourse of Salvation.....158

3 “Et mon bureau?”: Confronting Ignorance165

4 “Un bateau frêle comme un papillon de mai”: Creating Utopia.....173

Conclusion to Part Two187

PART THREE

“The aim of poetry is to illuminate the world and mankind’s task within it”:
Ethics and Canadian Modernism

Introduction to Part Three191

V “A new dimension of thought and feeling”: F. R. Scott197

1 “How shall I hear old music?”: Between Ethics and Aesthetics203

2 “A new language in birds”: Against Ossified Conceptions of Art212

3 “Nothing can take its place”: Towards a Recognition of Poetry’s Ethical Power...218

4 “But a deeper note is sounding”:
Beyond the Dualism of Civilization and Nature223

VI “Language defines our life, our relationships”: Dorothy Livesay237

1 “Forgive us our distances”: Suffering from Gender Binaries.....242

2 “Meanings bound re-bound”:
Striving for a New Dimension of Poetic Experience249

3 “Invert the world”: Unleashing Language.....258

4 “Woman in man, and man in womb”: Achieving Self-Completion265

Conclusion to Part Three275

GENERAL CONCLUSION.....277

WORKS CITED.....283

INDEX OF NAMES AND WORKS.....315