

Contents

Acknowledgments	ix
Introduction—Race as Narration: Studies of Italian Women’s Writings Since Unification	xi
1 Grazia Deledda’s Narrative Negotiations with the Racialization of Sardinian Character	1
2 The Tropics of Race in the Land of Cockayne	37
3 The Irreducible Individual and the Ethics of Writing in Natalia Ginzburg’s Lessico familiare	67
4 “We Are Stories of Stories in History”: Reimagining Community as Narrative in Regina di fiori e di perle by Gabriella Ghermandi	89
Conclusion—The Persistent Past: Haunting as Metaphor for Racism in Texts from Deledda to Ghermandi	105
Bibliography	113
Index	123
About the Author	127