

CONTENTS

Acknowledgements	ix
List of Figures and Tables	xi
Introduction: 'Good Taste in Reading'	1
1 H. G. Wells, Science and Sex in the Modern Library, 1917–31	19
2 'The Modern Library is Something Magnificent': Sherwood Anderson and the Canon of American Literature	41
3 Blurring the Boundaries: Detective Fiction and Joyce's A Portrait of the Artist as a Young Man in the Modern Library	63
4 Woolf in the Modern Library: Bridging the Gap between Professional and Common Readers	83
5 Canonical in the 1930s: Willa Cather's Death Comes for the Archbishop in the Modern Library Series	103
6 'If it's Like Any Introduction You Ever Read, I'll Eat the Jacket': Faulkner's Sanctuary , the Modern Library and the Literary Canon	123
Conclusion	145
Notes	151
Works Cited	181
Index	199