CONTENTS

CHAPTER 1 INTRODUCTION 1
1.1 The identification of the research gap 1
1.2 The general objective of the research 7
1.3 Theoretical support 8
1.4 Hypotheses and methodology 12
1.5 The organization of the book 14
CHAPTER 2 HUMAN CATEGORIZATION 15
2.1 The nature of categorization 15
2.2 Studies on categorization: From classical theory to cognitive approach 16
2.2.1 The classical theory of categorization 16
2.2.2 Problems with the classical theory of categorization 17
2.2.3 The shift from the classical to the cognitive approach 19
2.3 The theory of prototypes and basic-level categories 19
2.3.1 The principles of categorization and the categorization system 20
2.3.2 Asymmetries in concept categorization along vertical and horizontal dimensions 21
2.4 Summary 33
CHAPTER 3 CATEGORIZATION AND L1 VOCABULARY LEARNING 35
3. 1 Categorization: The cognitive foundation for word meaning 35
3.1.1 A conceptual model of word meaning: A connection between words and concepts 36
3.1.2 A conceptual model of word learning: Associating words with concepts 37
3.1.3 An implication of categorization as the cognitive foundation for word meaning 39
3. 2 Empirical evidence for the characteristics of concept categorization in L1 vocabulary learning and use 39

3.2.1 The basic-level effect in L1 vocabulary learning and use 39
3.2.2 The prototypicality effect in L1 vocabulary learning and use 42
3.3 Summary 45
CHAPTER 4 A CONCEPTUAL MODEL OF L2 VOCABULARY LEARNING 47
4.1 Differences between L2 vocabulary learning and L1 vocabulary learning 47
4.2 The association between L2 labels and concepts 48
4.2.1 The major debates in terms of the L2 word-concept associations 48
4.2.2 The word-association versus concept-mediation debate 51
4.2.3 The L1-concept versus L2-concept mediation debate 58
4.2.4 A tentative model of L2 word learning from the conceptual approach perspective 65
4.3 The notion of a single conceptual system in L2 learners' minds 69
4.4 Summary 72
CHAPTER 5 EXPERIENTIALISM 73
5.1 The embodiment of concepts 73
5.2 The cognitive view of categorization revisited: The theory of prototypes and basic-level categories 77
5.3 Possible universalities across conceptual systems 79
5.4 Sources of differences between conceptual systems 81
5.5 Theoretical predictions for the role of the L1-based patterns of concept categorization in L2 vocabulary learning 87
CHAPTER 6 THE BASIC-LEVEL EFFECT AND L2 VOCABULARY LEARNING 93
6.1 Introduction 93
6.2 The experiment 93
6.2.1 The working hypothesis and experiment design 93
6.2.2 Participants 94
6.2.3 Stimuli and procedure 95

6.2.4 Data conversion 98
6.3 Results and discussion 99
6.3.1 Frequencies of response types within groups 99
6.3.2 Frequencies of responses at the levels of categorization within label sets 103
6.3.3 Attempts at reproducing English labels within individual word sets 106
6.4 A summary of the findings 108
6.4.1 Responses within groups 108
6.4.2 Responses within label sets 109
6.4.3 Attempts at reproducing English labels 109
CHAPTER 7 THE PROTOTYPICALITY EFFECT AND L2 VOCABULARY LEARNING 111
7.1 Introduction 111
7.2 The working hypothesis and experiment design 111
7.3 Normative study: Determining prototypicality norms for native speakers of Chinese 112
7.3.1 Participants 112
7.3.2 Materials 113
7.3.3 Procedure 114
7.3.4 Results 116
7.3.5 Reliability 117
7.4 A no-cued English-word-learning and immediate cued-recall task: The function of the L1-based prototypicality in a cued-recall task with new L2 words 119
7.4.1 Participants 119
7.4.2 Stimuli materials and procedure 120
7.4.3 Data conversion 124
7.4.4 Results and discussion 125
7.4.5 A summary of the findings in the no-cued English-word-learning and immediate cued-recall task 129

7.5 A no-cue-at-input but cued-at-output English word immediate recall task: The function of the L1-based prototypicality in a cued-recall task with well-known L2 words 131
7.5.1 Participants 131
7.5.2 Stimuli materials 131
7.5.3 Procedure 134
7.5.4 Data conversion and analyses 135
7.5.5 Results and discussion 136
7.6 Conclusion 142
CHAPTER 8 CULTURE-SPECIFIC PROTOTYPICALITY EFFECT AND L2 VOCABULARY LEARNING 145
8.1 Introduction 145
8.2 The working hypothesis and experiment design 146
8.3 Normative study: Identification of cultural variations in prototypicality norms 147
8.3.1 Sense collection: A free sense-listing task 149
8.3.2 Normative study: A prototypicality rating task 151
8.4 A no-cued English-word-learning and immediate cued-recall task: The function of the culture-based prototypicality in a cued-recall task with new L2 words 170
8.4.1 Participants 170
8.4.2 Material 170
8.4.3 Procedure 173
8.4.4 Data conversion and analysis 175
8.4.5 Results and discussion 176
8.5 A cued-English-word-memory and immediate cued-recall task: The function of the culture-based prototypicality in a cued-recall task with well-known L2 words 197
8.5.1 Participants 197
8.5.2 Materials 197
8.5.3 Procedure 201
8.5.4 Data conversion and analysis 202

8.5.5 Results and discussion 203
8.6 Conclusion 219
CHAPTER 9 CONCLUSION 221
9.1 Major findings and pedagogical implications 221
9.1.1 Discussions about the presence of the basic-level effect and the prototypicality effect in L2 vocabulary learning 222
9.1.2 A discussion of all the findings 226
9.1.3 The pedagogical implications of the findings 228
9.2 The contributions of the present research 232
9.2.1 Theoretical contributions 232
9.2.2 Pedagogical contributions 234
9.3 Limitations of the research and suggestions for future research 235
9.3.1 Limitations of the research 235
9.3.2 Suggestions for future research 236
BIBLIOGRAPHY 237
APPENDIXES 257
Appendix 6.1 A sample of the learning material 256
Appendix 6.2 A sample of the testing material 256
Appendix 6.3 The Answer Sheet for the picture-naming task 258
Appendix 6.4 The instructions for the picture-accompanied English vocabulary learning task for Groups 1–4 and Group 5 259
Appendix 7.1 A sample of the 14 superordinate categories and their respective instances used in the normative study of the prototypicality rating task 261
Appendix 7.2 The instructions for the English-word-learning and immediate cued-recall task 262
Appendix 7.3 A sample of the presentation of the target English words in the word presentation section 263
Appendix 7.4 A sample of the arithmetic calculation in the English-word-learning and immediate cued-recall task 263
Appendix 7.5 A sample of the presentation of the retrieving cue in the English-word-learning and immediate cued-recall task 263

Appendix 7.6 A sample of the Answer Sheet for the English-word-learning and immediate recall task 264
Appendix 7.7 A 72-English-word vocabulary survey 265
Appendix 7.8 A 52-English-word vocabulary survey 266
Appendix 8.1 An open-ended questionnaire designed for the collection of senses 267
Appendix 8.2 A detailed description of the specific senses collected from the free sense-generation task and a check of OED online 271
Appendix 8.3 A sample of the rating booklets 280
Appendix 8.4 The exact mean prototypicality score for each instance in the 17 categories 282
Appendix 8.5 The instructions for the English-word-learning and immediate cued-recall task 290
Appendix 8.6 A sample of the to-be-learned word list for the English-word-learning and immediate cued-recall task 291
Appendix 8.7 A sample of the arithmetic calculations for the English-word-learning and immediate cued-recall task 291
Appendix 8.8 A sample of the Answer Sheet for the English-word-learning and immediate cued-recall task 291
Appendix 8.9 The category items from the 15 categories which met the first criterion 292
Appendix 8.10 A 91-English-word vocabulary survey 295
Appendix 8.11 The instructions for the cued-English-word-memory and immediate cued-recall task 297
Appendix 8.12 The Answer Sheet in the cued-English-word-memory and immediate cued-recall task 298
Appendix 8.13 A 66-English-word vocabulary survey for the cued-English-word-memory and immediate cued-recall task 298
