

CONTENTS

	Page
Preface .....	iii
Introduction .....	1
Chapter I    The reorganisation of economic management and the need to improve remuneration practices .....	3
Aggregate wage-productivity relationships .....	3
Wage differences amongst workers and engineering and technical staff .....	4
Wage differences amongst workers .....	7
Adequacy of work norms .....	8
The wage-working conditions relationship .....	9
The role of basic wages in total earnings .....	10
Excessive centralised controls .....	10
Chapter II   Principal methods of increasing the material interest of workers in improving performance .....	12
Linking wage fund formation to work performance .....	13
The role of basic wage rates .....	16
Chapter III  The reform of basic wages in the new economic management context .....	19
Changes in basic wage rates .....	19
The use of professional skill allowances .....	22
Providing incentives for assuming more demanding work norms .....	23
Compensating for working conditions .....	24
Improvement in the remuneration of specialist and non-manual workers .....	25
Wage differences between specialists and workers .....	28
Special allowances .....	29
Personal assessment and manning tables for specialists ...	30
Improving the salaries of managers .....	32
Chapter IV  Enhancing the role of bonuses as incentives in achieving improved production performance .....	36
Objectives of reform of the bonus system .....	37
Bonuses for workers .....	38
Bonuses for managers, specialists and non-manual workers .....	40
Bonuses for savings in the use of material resources .....	42
Chapter V   Lessons from initial applications of the wage reform .....	43
Successes .....	43
Problems .....	45