

contents

preface
arrivals and departures	vii
Homi K. Bhabha
acknowledgments	xiii
introduction
1. framing exile: from homeland to homepage	1
Hamid Naficy
part one: traveling concepts
2. exile, nomadism, and diaspora:
the stakes of mobility in the western canon	17
John Durham Peters
part two: synesthetic homing
3. “is any body home?”: embodied imagination
and visible evictions	45
Vivian Sobchack
4. home: smell, taste, posture, gleam	63
Margaret Morse
5. the intolerable gift: residues and traces of a journey	75
Teshome H. Gabriel
6. the key to the house	85
Patricia Seed
part three: cinematic modes of production
7. ethnicity, authenticity, and exile: a counterfeit trade?
german filmmakers and hollywood	97
Thomas Elsaesser
8. between rocks and hard places:
the interstitial mode of production in exilic cinema	125
Hamid Naficy

part four: mediated collective formations

9.	bounded realms: household, family, community, and nation	151
	David Morley
10.	recycling colonialist fantasies on the texas borderlands	169
	Rosa Linda Fregoso
11.	“home is where the hatred is”: work, music, and the transnational economy	193
	George Lipsitz
12.	by the bitstream of babylon: cyberfrontiers and diasporic vistas	213
	Ella Shohat
	notes on contributors	233
	index	237