

CONTENTS

AUTHOR'S PREFACE	xiii
----------------------------	------

PART ONE: THE LAW

Nomostatics

I. THE CONCEPT OF LAW	3
A. Law and Justice	3
a. Human behavior as the object of rules	3
b. Scientific and political definition of law	4
c. The concept of law and the idea of justice	5
1. Justice as a subjective judgment of value	6
2. Natural law	8
3. The dualism of positive and natural law	12
4. Justice and peace	13
5. Justice and legality	14
B. The Criterion of Law (Law as a Specific Social Technique)	15
a. Direct and indirect motivation	15
b. Transcendental and socially organized sanctions	16
c. Punishment and reward	17
d. Law as a coercive order	18
e. Law, morality, religion	20
f. Monopolization of the use of force	21
g. Law and peace	22
h. Psychic compulsion	23
i. The motives of lawful behavior	24
j. Arguments against the definition of law as coercive order	24
1. Eugen Ehrlich's theory	24
2. The never-ending series of sanctions	28
C. Validity and Efficacy	29
a. The "norm"	30
1. The law as a command, i.e., expression of a will	30
2. The "will" of the parties in a legal transaction	32
3. The "will" of the legislator	33
4. Customary law as command	34
5. The "ought"	35
b. General and individual norms	37
c. Conditional and unconditional norms	38

d. Norm and act	39
e. Efficacy as conformity of the behavior to the norm	39
f. Behavior "opposed" to the norm	40
g. Efficacy as condition of validity	41
h. Sphere of validity of the norms	42
i. Retroactive laws and ignorantia juris	44
D. The Legal Norm	45
a. Legal norm and rule of law in a descriptive sense	45
b. Rule of law and law of nature	45
c. The legal norm as a standard of valuation	47
II. THE SANCTION	50
III. THE DELICT	51
A. "Mala in se" and "Mala prohibita"	51
B. The Delict as a Condition of the Sanction	53
C. The Delict as Behavior of the Individual against whom the Sanction is Directed	54
D. Identification of the Delinquent with the Members of his Group	56
E. Delict of Juristic Persons	57
IV. THE LEGAL DUTY	58
A. Duty and Norm	58
B. The Duty and the "Ought"	59
C. The Secondary Norm	60
D. Obeying and Applying the Legal Norm	61
E. Austin's Distinction between Primary and Secondary Duties	62
V. THE LEGAL RESPONSIBILITY	65
A. Culpability and Absolute Liability	65
B. Duty and Responsibility; Individual and Collective Responsi- bility	68
C. Austin's Concept of Duty	71
a. No distinction between duty (obligation) and responsibility	71
b. The legal duty no psychological bond	71
c. Duty as fear of sanction	72
d. The psychological concept of duty and analytical juris- prudence	74
VI. THE LEGAL RIGHT	75
A. Right and Duty	75

CONTENTS

xxi

B. Permission	77
C. The Legal Right in a Narrow Sense	77
a. Right more than the correlative of a duty	77
b. Law and right	78
c. The right as recognized will or protected interest	79
d. The right as legal possibility to put in motion the sanction	81
e. Right and representation	83
D. The Right as a Specific Legal Technique	84
E. Absolute and Relative Rights	85
F. The Right as Participation in the Creation of Law	87
G. Civil and Political Rights	87
VII. COMPETENCE (LEGAL CAPACITY)	90
VIII. IMPUTATION (IMPUTABILITY)	91
IX. THE LEGAL PERSON	93
A. Substance and Quality	93
B. The Physical Person	93
a. Physical person and human being	93
b. Physical person: a juristic person	95
C. The Juristic Person	96
a. The corporation	96
b. Duties and rights of a juristic person as duties and rights of men	97
c. The by-laws of the corporation (order and community)	98
d. The organ of the community	99
e. The imputation to the order	99
f. The juristic person as personified order	99
g. Obligating and empowering of juristic persons	100
h. The concept of the juristic person as auxiliary concept	100
i. Duties and rights of a juristic person: collective duties and rights of men	101
j. The civil delict of a juristic person	103
k. The criminal delict of a juristic person	104
l. Juristic person and representation	107
m. Juristic person as real being (organism)	108
n. Corporation as "body of men"	109
Nomodynamics
X. THE LEGAL ORDER	110
A. The Unity of a Normative Order	110

a.	The reason of validity: the basic norm	110
b.	The static system of norms	112
c.	The dynamic system of norms	112
B.	The Law as a Dynamic System of Norms	113
a.	The positivity of law	113
b.	Customary and statutory law	114
C.	The Basic Norm of a Legal Order	115
a.	The basic norm and the constitution	115
b.	The specific function of the basic norm	116
c.	The principle of legitimacy	117
d.	Change of the basic norm	118
e.	The principle of effectiveness	118
f.	Desuetudo	119
g.	The "ought" and the "is"	120
h.	Law and power (right and might)	120
i.	The principle of effectiveness as positive legal norm (Inter- national and national law)	121
j.	Validity and efficacy	122
D.	The Static and the Dynamic Concept of Law	122
XI.	THE HIERARCHY OF THE NORMS	123
A.	The Superior and the Inferior Norm	123
B.	The Different Stages of the Legal Order	124
a.	The constitution	124
1.	Constitution in a material and a formal sense; determi- nation of the creation of general norms	124
2.	Determination of the content of general norms by the constitution	125
3.	Custom as determined by the constitution	126
b.	General norms enacted on the basis of the constitution; statutes, customary law	128
c.	Substantive and adjective law	129
d.	Determination of the law-applying organs by general norms	129
e.	Ordinances (regulations)	130
f.	The "sources" of law	131
g.	Creation of law and application of law	132
1.	Merely relative difference between law-creating and law-applying function	132
2.	Determination of the law-creating function	133
h.	Individual norms created on the basis of general norms	134
1.	The judicial act as creation of an individual norm	134
2.	The judicial act as a stage of the law-creating process	134
3.	The ascertainment of the conditioning facts	135

CONTENTS

xxiii

C.	The Legal Transaction (Juristic Act)	136
a.	The legal transaction as law-creating and law-applying act	136
1.	Private autonomy	136
2.	The secondary norm as product of a legal transaction	137
3.	Reparation	138
4.	Legal transaction and delict	140
b.	The contract	140
1.	The will and its expression	140
2.	Offer and acceptance	141
3.	The norm created by the contract	141
4.	One-sided and two-sided legal transactions	142
D.	Nature of Constitutional Law	143
E.	Relationship between the Judicial Act and the Pre-existent Norm Applied by the Judicial Act	144
a.	Determination of the judicial act only by adjective law	144
b.	Determination of the judicial act by substantive law	145
c.	Discretion of the court (judge as legislator)	145
F.	Gaps (Lacunae) of Law	146
a.	The idea of "gaps": a fiction	146
b.	The purpose of the fiction of gaps	148
G.	General Norms created by Judicial Acts	149
a.	Precedents	149
b.	"All the law is judge-made law"	150
1.	The doctrine of J. C. Gray	150
2.	No judicial decision without pre-existing law	151
3.	Only law can be "source" of law	152
H.	Conflicts between Norms of Different Stages	153
a.	Concordance or discordance between the judicial decision and the general norm to be applied by the decision	153
b.	Concordance or discordance between statute and constitution (The unconstitutional statute)	155
c.	Guarantees of the constitution	157
1.	Abrogation of the "unconstitutional" statute	157
2.	Personal responsibility of the organ	157
d.	Res judicata (force of law)	158
e.	Nullity and annullability	159
f.	No contradiction between an inferior and a superior norm	161
XII.	NORMATIVE AND SOCIOLOGICAL JURISPRUDENCE	162
A.	Sociological Jurisprudence not the only Science of Law	162
B.	Normative Jurisprudence as Empirical and Descriptive Science of Law	163

C.	The Prediction of the Legal Function	165
a.	T. H. Huxley's distinction between "law of men" and law of nature	165
b.	O. W. Holmes' and B. N. Cardozo's concept of jurispru- dence as prophecy	166
D.	The Specific Meaning of a Juristic Statement	167
E.	No Prediction of the Legislative Function	168
F.	The Law not a system of Doctrines (Theorems)	168
G.	The Difference between the Statements of a Normative and of a Sociological Jurisprudence	169
H.	Sociological Elements in Austin's Analytical Jurisprudence	171
I.	Predictability of the Legal Function and Efficacy of the Legal Order	172
J.	Irrelevancy of Individual Circumstances	173
K.	Sociology of Law and Sociology of Justice	174
L.	Sociological Jurisprudence presupposes the Normative Con- cept of Law	175
a.	Difference between the legal and the illegal act	175
b.	Max Weber's definition of sociology of law	175
c.	Legal and de facto authority	176
M.	The Object of the Sociology of Law: Behavior determined by the Legal Order	178

PART TWO: THE STATE

I.	THE LAW AND THE STATE	181
A.	The State as a Real (Sociological) or Juristic Entity	181
a.	The State as personification of the national legal order	181
b.	The State as order and as community constituted by the order	182
c.	The State as sociological unity	183
1.	Social unity (body) constituted by interaction	183
2.	Social unity (body) constituted by common will or interest	184
3.	The State as organism	185
4.	The State as domination	186
d.	Juristic concept of State and sociology of State	188
1.	Human behavior oriented to the legal order	188
2.	Normative character of the State	189

CONTENTS

XXV

e. The State as "politically" organized society (The State as power)	189
f. The problem of the State as a problem of imputation	191
B. The Organs of the State	192
a. The concept of the State-organ	192
b. The formal and the material concept of The State	193
c. The creation of the State-organ	195
d. The simple and the composite organ	195
e. Procedure	196
C. The State as Subject of Duties and Rights	197
a. The auto-obligation of the State	197
b. The duties of the State (The delict of the State)	199
c. The rights of the State	200
d. Rights against the State	201
D. Private and Public Law	201
a. The traditional theory: State and private persons	201
b. The State as subject of private law	202
c. Superiority and inferiority	203
d. Autonomy and heteronomy (private and administrative law)	204
e. Family law; international law	206
f. Public or private interest (Private and criminal law)	206
II. THE ELEMENTS OF THE STATE	207
A. The Territory of the State	207
a. The territory of the State as the territorial sphere of validity of the national legal order	207
b. The limitation of the territorial sphere of validity of the national legal order by the international legal order	208
c. The territory of the State in a narrower and in a wider sense	210
d. The "impenetrability" of the State	212
e. The boundaries of the State territory (Changes in the territorial status)	213
f. The territory of the State a space of three dimensions	217
g. Relationship between the State and its territory	218
B. Time as an Element of the State	218
a. The temporal sphere of validity of the national legal order	218
b. Birth and death of the State	219
1. Limitation of the temporal sphere of validity of the national legal order by the international legal order	219
2. The identity of the State	219
3. Birth and death of the State as legal problems	220

c.	Recognition	221
1.	Recognition of a community as a State	221
2.	De jure and De facto recognition	225
3.	Recognition with retroactive force	226
4.	Recognition by admission into the League of Nations	227
5.	Recognition of governments	228
6.	Recognition of insurgents as a belligerent Power	229
d.	Succession of States	230
e.	State Servitudes	231
C.	The People of the State	233
a.	The people of the State as the personal sphere of validity of the national legal order	233
b.	Limitation of the personal sphere of validity of the national legal order by the international legal order	233
c.	Exterritoriality; protection of aliens	234
d.	Citizenship (Nationality)	234
1.	Military service	234
2.	Allegiance	235
3.	Political rights	235
4.	Expulsion	236
5.	Extradition	237
6.	Protection of citizens	237
7.	Jurisdiction over citizens abroad	238
8.	Acquisition and loss of citizenship	238
9.	Nationality of juristic persons	240
10.	Is citizenship a necessary institution?	241
D.	The Competence of the State as the Material Sphere of Valid- ity of the National Legal Order	242
E.	Conflict of Laws	243
F.	The so-called Fundamental Rights and Duties of the States	248
a.	Natural-law doctrine applied to the relationship between States	248
b.	The equality of the States	252
G.	The Power of the State	255
a.	The power of the State as the validity and efficacy of the national legal order	255
b.	The powers or functions of the State: legislation and exe- cution	255
c.	The legislative power	256
d.	The executive and judicial power	258
e.	The constitution	258
1.	The political concept of the constitution	258

CONTENTS

xxvii

2. Rigid and flexible constitutions	259
3. The content of the constitution	260
a. The preamble	260
β. Determination of the contents of future statutes	261
γ. Determination of the administrative and judicial function	262
δ. The "unconstitutional" law	262
ε. Constitutional prohibitions	263
ζ. Bill of rights	266
η. Guarantees of the constitution	267
III. THE SEPARATION OF POWERS	269
A. The Concept of "Separation of Powers"	269
B. Separation of the Legislative from the Executive Power	270
a. Priority of the so-called legislative organ	270
b. Legislative function of the chief of the executive department	270
c. Legislative function of the judiciary	272
C. Not Separation but Distribution of Powers	272
D. Separation of the Judicial from the Executive (Administrative) Power	273
a. Nature of the judicial function	273
b. Judicial function of the organs of the executive power (administration)	274
c. Independence of judges	275
d. The specific administrative function: the administrative act	275
e. Administration under the control of the judiciary	276
f. Close connection between the administrative and the judicial function	277
g. Administrative procedure	278
E. Coercive Acts of the Administrative Organs	278
F. Direct and Indirect Administration	279
G. Legal Control of Administration by Ordinary or by Administrative Courts	280
H. Control of Legislation by Courts	280
I. The Historical Rôle of the "Separation of Powers"	281
J. Separation of Powers and Democracy	282
IV. FORMS OF GOVERNMENT: DEMOCRACY AND AUTOCRACY	283
A. Classification of Constitutions	283

a.	Monarchy and republic	283
b.	Democracy and autocracy	284
B.	Democracy	284
a.	The idea of freedom	284
1.	The metamorphosis of the idea of freedom	284
2.	The principle of self-determination	285
b.	The principle of majority	285
1.	Self-determination and anarchy	285
2.	Necessary restriction of liberty by the principle of majority	286
3.	The idea of equality	287
c.	The right of the minority	287
d.	Democracy and liberalism	287
e.	Democracy and compromise	288
f.	Direct and indirect (representative) democracy	288
g.	The fiction of representation	289
h.	The electoral systems	292
1.	The electoral body	292
2.	The right of suffrage	293
3.	Majority and proportional representation	294
a.	The political party	294
β.	Electorate and representative body	295
γ.	The idea of proportional representation	296
i.	Functional representation	297
j.	Democracy of legislation	298
1.	Unicameral and bicameral system	298
2.	Popular initiative and referendum	298
k.	Democracy of execution	299
l.	Democracy and legality of execution	299
C.	Autocracy	300
a.	The absolute monarchy	300
b.	The constitutional monarchy	300
c.	The presidential republic and the republic with cabinet government	301
d.	The party dictatorship	301
1.	The one-party State (Bolshevism and Fascism)	301
2.	Complete suppression of individual freedom	302
3.	Irrelevancy of constitutional institutions	302
4.	The totalitarian State	303
V.	FORMS OF ORGANIZATION: CENTRALIZATION AND DECENTRALIZATION	303
A.	Centralization and Decentralization as Legal Concepts	303
B.	The Static Concept of Centralization and Decentralization	304

CONTENTS

xxix

a. The juristic concept of territorial division	304
b. Principles of organization based on territorial or on personal status	305
c. Total and partial centralization and decentralization	306
d. Criteria of the degrees of centralization and decentralization	306
e. Method of restricting the territorial sphere of validity	307
C. The Dynamic Concept of Centralization and Decentralization	308
a. Centralized and decentralized creation of norms	308
b. Form of government and form of organization	310
c. Democracy and decentralization	311
d. Perfect and imperfect centralization and decentralization	313
e. Administrative decentralization	313
f. Decentralization by local autonomy	314
g. Decentralization by autonomous provinces	316
D. Federal State and Confederacy of States	316
a. Centralization of legislation	316
1. Federal State	316
2. Confederacy of States	319
b. Centralization of execution	320
1. Federal State	320
2. Confederacy of States	320
c. Distribution of competence in a federal State and a confederacy of States	321
d. Citizenship	322
e. Direct and indirect obligating and authorizing	322
f. Internationalization and centralization	323
g. Transformation of a unitary State into a federal State or into a confederacy of States	324
E. The international legal community	325
a. No absolute borderline between national and international law	325
b. National law as a relatively centralized legal order	325
c. The decentralization of international law	325
1. Static decentralization	326
2. Dynamic decentralization	327
3. Relative centralization by particular international law	327
VI. NATIONAL AND INTERNATIONAL LAW	328
A. The Legal Character of International Law	328
a. Delict and sanction in international law	328
b. Reprisals and war	330
c. The two interpretations of war	331
d. The doctrine of bellum justum	331

1. International public opinion	331
2. The idea of bellum justum in positive international law	332
3. The idea of bellum justum in primitive society	334
4. The bellum justum theory in Antiquity, the Middle Ages, and modern times	335
e. Arguments against the bellum justum theory	336
f. The primitive legal order	338
g. International law as primitive law	339
B. International Law and State	341
a. The subjects of international law: indirect obligating and authorizing of individuals by international law	341
b. The norms of international law incomplete norms	343
c. Direct obligating and authorizing of individuals by international law	343
1. Individuals as direct subjects of international duties	343
2. Individuals as direct subjects of international rights	347
d. National law "delegated" by international law	348
e. The essential function of international law	349
f. The determination by the international legal order of the sphere of validity of the national legal order	350
g. The State as organ of the international legal order (The creation of international law)	351
h. The international responsibility of the State	355
1. Collective responsibility of the State and individual responsibility of individuals as subjects of international law	355
2. Duty of reparation	357
3. So-called "indirect" or "vicarious" responsibility	358
4. Absolute responsibility (liability) of the State	361
C. The Unity of National and International Law (Monism and Pluralism)	363
a. The monistic and the pluralistic theory	363
b. The subject-matter of national and international law	364
c. The "source" of national and international law	365
d. The reason of validity of national and international law	366
1. The reason of validity of the national legal order determined by international law	366
2. Revolution and Coup d'Etat as law-creating facts according to international law	368
3. The basic norm of international law	369
4. The historical and the logico-juristic view	370
e. Conflicts between national and international law	371
f. The unity of national and international law as a postulate of legal theory	373
1. The possible relationship between two systems of norms	373

CONTENTS

xxxi

2. The relationship between positive law and morality	374
3. Collision of duties	375
4. Normativity and factuality	375
g. Primacy of national law, or primacy of international law	376
1. National and international personality of the State	376
2. Transformation of international into national law	378
3. Only one national legal order as a system of valid norms	379
4. The recognition of international law	380
5. The primacy of national law	382
h. Sovereignty	383
1. Sovereignty as a quality of a normative order	383
2. Sovereignty as exclusive quality of only one order	385
i. The philosophical and juristic significance of the two monistic hypotheses	386
1. Subjectivism and objectivism	386
2. Wrong uses of the two hypotheses	387
3. The choice between the two hypotheses	388

APPENDIX

NATURAL LAW DOCTRINE AND LEGAL POSITIVISM

I. THE IDEA OF NATURAL LAW AND THE ESSENCE OF POSITIVE LAW	391
A. Social Theory and the Problem of Justice	391
B. The Principle of Validity in Natural and Positive Law; the Factor of Coercion; Law and State	392
C. The "Ought": Absolute and Relative Validity	393
D. The Basic Norm of Positive Law	395
E. The Immutability of Natural Law	396
F. The Limitation of the Natural-Law Idea	397
II. NATURAL AND POSITIVE LAW AS SYSTEMS OF NORMS	398
A. The Unity of Systems of Norms	398
B. The Static Principle of Natural Law and the Dynamic Prin- ciple of Positive Law	399
C. The Limitation of Positivism	401
D. Positive Law as a Meaningful Order	401
E. The Subjective and Objective Meaning of Legal Material	404

F.	The Methodological Importance of the Basic Norm in Positive Law	406
III.	THE RELATION OF NATURAL TO POSITIVE LAW. THE POLITICAL SIGNIFICANCE OF NATURAL-LAW THEORY	407
A.	The Exclusive Validity of a System of Norms: the Logical Principle of Contradiction in the Sphere of Normative Validity	407
B.	The Norm as an "Ought" and as a Psychological Fact: Collision of Duties and Contradiction of Norms	408
C.	Law and Morals: the Postulate of the Unity of System	410
D.	The Logical Impossibility of the Coexistence of Positive and Natural Law	411
E.	The Impossibility of a Relationship of Delegation between Natural and Positive Law	412
F.	Positive Law as a Mere Fact in its Relation to Natural Law as a Norm	413
G.	The Relation of Natural to Positive Law in the Historical Natural-Law Doctrine	414
H.	Natural Law as a Justification of Positive Law	416
I.	The Supposedly Revolutionary Character of Natural-Law Doctrine	417
IV.	THE EPISTEMOLOGICAL (METAPHYSICAL) AND PSYCHOLOGICAL FOUNDATIONS	419
A.	The Metaphysical Dualism	419
a.	The duplication of the object of cognition in the sphere of natural reality; the image theory	419
b.	The duplication of the object of cognition in the realm of values	420
c.	The theory of nature and law among primitives	422
d.	Metaphysical-religious dualism	423
e.	Pessimistic dualism: personality type and metaphysical attitude	425
f.	Pessimistic dualism: its social theory; the revolutionary position	426
g.	Optimistic dualism: personality type and metaphysical attitude	427
h.	Optimistic dualism: its political and legal philosophy; conservatism	428
i.	The compromise type of metaphysical dualism	430
j.	The compromise type: personality and metaphysics	430

CONTENTS

xxxiii

k. The compromise type: its legal-political attitude. Compromise and evolutionary position 432

B. The Scientific-Critical Philosophy 433

 a. The end of metaphysical dualism 433

 b. The epistemology of the scientific outlook; its psychological foundation 434

 c. Legal positivism; law and power 435

 d. The transcendental-logical natural-law doctrine. The political indifference of legal positivism 437

 e. The ideal of justice becomes a logical pattern 439

 f. The method of the ideal type 441

 g. The realization of ideal types in intellectual history 443

 h. Kant's critical idealism and legal positivism 444

LIST OF PUBLICATIONS 447

INDEX 467