

CONTENTS

Preface . . . . .	v
Part I. Comparative study of methods and practices ( John P. Windmuller )
1. Origins and nature of collective bargaining . . . . .	3
Origins . . . . .	4
Attributes . . . . .	8
Coverage . . . . .	10
Consultation and collective bargaining . . . . .	12
2. Structure and organisation of the parties . . . . .	17
The employees . . . . .	17
The employers . . . . .	35
3. Rules and procedures in bargaining . . . . .	45
Recognition . . . . .	45
The duty to bargain . . . . .	49
Standing bargaining machinery . . . . .	52
Formulating bargaining positions . . . . .	54
Research and preparation . . . . .	57
Employer disclosure obligations . . . . .	60
Negotiating patterns . . . . .	63
Authority of negotiators . . . . .	68
Duration of agreements . . . . .	74
4. The bargaining structure . . . . .	81
Determinants of the bargaining structure . . . . .	83
Current trends in selected countries . . . . .	92
Comparative assessment . . . . .	113
5. The role of government . . . . .	121
Evolution of public policies . . . . .	121
The negotiating process . . . . .	126

Collective bargaining: A reappraisal

Substantive issues . . . . .	129
Application of collective agreements . . . . .	133
Research, information, advice and education . . . . .	137
Wage bargaining under severe economic constraints . . . . .	139
6. Summary and perspectives . . . . .	149

Part II. Recent trends in selected countries

Australia ( Braham Dabscheck and John Niland ) . . . . .	161
The institutional setting . . . . .	162
The economy . . . . .	165
Wages policy . . . . .	167
Conclusion . . . . .	173
Belgium ( R. Blanpain ) . . . . .	177
Parties to the collective bargaining process . . . . .	178
Role of the public authorities . . . . .	179
Bargaining bodies and procedures . . . . .	182
Structure of bargaining . . . . .	183
Extent, content and outcome of collective bargaining . . . . .	184
Collective bargaining and workers' participation . . . . .	187
Labour disputes . . . . .	187
France ( Guy Caire ) . . . . .	191
The new legal framework . . . . .	192
The impact on collective bargaining . . . . .	198
The problems . . . . .	203
Federal Republic of Germany ( Friedrich Fürstenberg ) . . . . .
Background . . . . .	209
The parties to collective bargaining . . . . .	210
Legislative developments . . . . .	213
Trends in collective agreements and bargaining procedures . . . . .	214
Bargaining strategies and results . . . . .	216
Collective bargaining and co-determination . . . . .	220
Labour disputes . . . . .	221
Outlook . . . . .	222
Italy ( Gino Giugni ) . . . . .	225
Introduction . . . . .	225
The parties to collective bargaining . . . . .	226
Collective bargaining in industry . . . . .	231
Relationship between collective agreements and between collective bargaining and the law . . . . .	237
Collective bargaining in the public service . . . . .	237
Conclusions . . . . .	238

Japan (Taishiro Shirai)

Structure of collective bargaining . . . . .	242
How the industrial relations machinery operates . . . . .	246
The outlook for collective bargaining in Japan . . . . .	250

Netherlands (W. Albeda)

The changing institutional scene . . . . .	253
The trade unions and wage policy . . . . .	254
The trade unions and employers during the recession . . . . .	257
The trade unions and social security . . . . .	259
Developments at the enterprise level . . . . .	260
Strikes . . . . .	261
Proposals for profit sharing . . . . .	262
Future outlook . . . . .	262

Sweden

An employer's view ( Lars-Gunnar Albåge ) . . . . .	265
Economic developments . . . . .	265
Organisational developments . . . . .	268
Legislative developments . . . . .	269
Union rivalry and pay comparability . . . . .	272
Centralised versus decentralised bargaining . . . . .	273
Growing government intervention . . . . .	274
Concluding remarks . . . . .	275
A trade unionist's reply ( Harry Fjällström ) . . . . .	276

United Kingdom (B. C. Roberts)

Introduction . . . . .	281
Trade unions . . . . .	282
Employers' organisations . . . . .	288
Collective bargaining . . . . .	289
Outlook . . . . .	297

United States (Donald E. Cullen)

The recent record: An overview . . . . .	301
Stability and change . . . . .	304
The determinants of recent changes . . . . .	317
Something new or something old? . . . . .	319

List of works cited in Part I . . . . . 325

Tables in Part I

1. Union membership as an approximate percentage of all wage earners and salaried employees, selected years, 1955-80 . . . . .	19
2. United States: Number and percentage of closed FMSC joint meeting cases involving rejection of tentative settlement, 1964-81 . . . . .	74
3. Duration of collective agreements in Canada, 1967 and 1983 . . . . .	76