INTRODUCTION . . . . .	I
PART I. THE REAL INDIVIDUAL AND WORLD ORDER. . . . .	7
CHAPTER I. THE COSMOLOGICAL CONCEPTION OF THE REAL INDIVIDUAL . . . . .	9
(a) The "middle term" between the two infinities . . . . .	9
(b) The world context of actual existence and cosmological inquiry . . . . .	13
CHAPTER II. MODES OF CONTINGENCY . . . . .	23
(a) The real individual being in the world context . . . . .	23
(b) Existential transitoriness . . . . .	42
(c) Existential derivativeness . . . . .	65
(d) Finality and sufficient reason . . . . .	71
CHAPTER III. FROM THE WORLD ORDER TO THE TOTALITY OF BEING . . . . .	77
(a) Conjectural inference and the world order. . . . .	77
(b) Contingency of the world order and its conjectural requirements. . . . .	86
(c) Conjectural transition to the totality of being. . . . .	90
PART II. COSMOLOGICAL CONSTITUTION AS THE PHENOMENOLOGICAL APPROACH TO THE PROBLEM OF COSMIC CREATION . . . . .	93
CHAPTER I. THE ARCHITECTONIC PROJECT . . . . .	95
(a) Beings and beingness. . . . .	95
(b) The constitutive nature of the architectonic project . . . . .	97

CHAPTER II. THE TOTALITY OF BEINGS AND THE CONSTITUTIVE SYSTEM . . . . .	102
(a) The question of ideal and intentional beings . . . . .	102
(b) Ideas as the a priori of the phenomenological "constitution" . . . . .	160
(c) Ideas, the unconditioned and transsubjective factor of experience. . . . .	146
(d) The sufficient reason of the real world and the constitutive system . . . . .	155
CONCLUSION . . . . .	158
