

CONTENTS

Preface	v
1. Introduction	1
1.1 Preliminaries	1
1.2 Phonological Primes	4
1.3 Dependency Within the Segment, and Without	12
2. Ablaut: The Life Cycle of a Phonological Process	17
2.1 Introduction	17
2.2 Post-ablaut Alternations in Strong Verb Classes III-V	21
2.3 Post-ablaut Alternations in Classes I-II	26
2.4 Ablaut	33
2.5 Class VI	36
2.6 Long Vowels and Unspecified Vowels	42
2.7 Subsequent Developments	47
3. Mutation and Shift.....	53
3.1 Old English I -Umlaut	53
3.2 I -Umlaut of Diphthongs	57
3.3 I -Umlaut and Dependency	61
3.4 Divocalic Nuclei in Middle English	69
3.5 Subsequent Development of Divocalic Nuclei in /a-/	74
3.6 The Great Vowel Shift.....	78
3.7 Problems with Diphthongs	84
3.8 Epilogue and Prologue	89
4. Syllables, Stress and Subjunction	91
4.1 Syllabic Phonologies	91

4.2	Maximalist vs. Minimalist Syllabification	94
4.3	Weak Syllables and Stress: A Problem for Non-Syllabic Phonology	95
4.4	Weak Syllables and Syllabification	99
4.5	The Maximalist Character of Pre-stress Syllabification ..	103
4.6	Syllable Boundary Placement	107
4.7	Syllabic Segment Selection	112
4.8	A Dependency Interpretation of Syllabicity and Stress ...	116
4.9	On Subjunction and Strength	120
5.	Vowel and Consonant Epenthesis	127
5.1	Preliminaries	127
5.2	Consonantal Epenthesis and Syllable Bracketing	130
5.3	Some Remarks on the Recurrence of Sound Changes	133
5.4	Old English Back Mutation and Middle English Open Syllable Lengthening	135
5.5	Old English Breaking	140
5.6	Middle English Breaking	145
5.7	Old English Homorganic Lengthening	148
5.8	Overview: Vowel Diphthongization and Lengthening in Old and Middle English	150
6.	On Canonical Configurations	159
6.1	Epenthesis and Syllable Shape	159
6.2	'Preferred' Shapes for Syllables and Supra-Syllabics	163
6.3	On Stressed Syllables and the Notion 'Nucleus'	172
6.4	The Structure of Monosyllables	175
6.5	Segment Deletion	177
6.6	Intrasegmental Epenthesis	179
	References	181