

CONTENTS

Preface	vii
1 Introduction	5
2 The Aristotelian Inheritance in Logic (1615–1825)
I. Some Seventeenth-Century Peripatetics	13
II. Bishop Sanderson and the Attack on Ramus	16
III. Crakanthorp's Logicae Libri Quinque	22
IV. John Wallis's Institutio Logicae	29
V. Dean Aldrich's Famous Artis Logicae Compendium	42
VI. Syllogisms and Science: John Sergeant's View	61
3 The Eighteenth-Century Ciceronians (1700–1759)
I. Rhetoric as the Counterpart of Logic	75
II. John Ward's Lectures at Gresham College	83
III. John Holmes's The Art of Rhetoric Made Easy	125
IV. Separative Tensions in Rhetoric: A Retrospect	142
4 The British Elocutionary Movement (1702–1806)
I. Rhetorical Delivery Adopts a New Name	145
II. Some Reflections on a Semantic Problem	147
III. Why Delivery Aroused Urgent Interest	152
IV. Continental Backgrounds of British Elocution	160
V. Le Faucheur's Traitté in England	164
VI. Betterton: Major Actor as Minor Elocutionist	182
VII. Some Rules for Speaking and Action	190
VIII. Orator Henley: Preacher, Elocutionist, Merry-Andrew	193
IX. Mason's Essay on Elocution	204
X. Action Proper for the Pulpit	209
XI. Sheridan: Minor Actor as Major Elocutionist	214
XII. Burgh, Herries, Walker, Austin	244

CONTENTS

5	The New Logic (1690–1814)
	I. Seven Points of Friction	259
	II. John Locke and the New Logic	264
	III. Other Voices: Le Clerc, Crousaz, Watts, Duncan, Wolff	299
	IV. The New Accent: Reid, Kames, Campbell, Stewart	372
6	The New Rhetoric (1646–1800)
	I. Rhetoric versus Rhetoric: A Litigation in Six Issues	441
	II. Voices of the Royal Society: Wilkins, Boyle, Sprat, Glanvill, Locke	448
	III. Influences from Abroad: Lamy, Fénelon, Rapin, Bouhours, Rollin	503
	IV. The New Rhetoric Comes of Age: Adam Smith's Lectures at Edinburgh and Glasgow	536
	V. George Campbell and the Philosophical Rhetoric of the New Learning	577
	VI. Discordant Consensus: Hume, Lawson, Priestley, Blair, Witherspoon	613
7	Conclusion	695
	Index	719