

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments	ix
Abbreviations	xi
Introduction	3
 I. ARTISTS
Artists Identifying Themselves	9
Classical Outline and Romantic Identity	9
The Contour of Truth	11
The Color of Beauty	15
The Lineaments of Imagination	18
The Application	38
 II. WORKS, PART ONE
Artists Expressing Themselves as Works of Art	45
Expression and Character	45
Integrity and Originality	67
 III. WORKS, PART TWO
Content Becoming Form in Six Scenes	79
Closing Form and Content	79
Artistic Pedagogy and Cultural Progress	91
“If Art Was Progressive”: Heroes and Hero-Worship in Romantic History	107
“This Absurd Assertion”	123
Decorum	138
Conception and Execution in Performance	162

IV. AUDIENCES

Artists Expressing Works Express Audiences	171
The Problem of the Romantic Audience	171
Summary: The Artist's Identity and the Work of Art	174
The Audience Feared	176
The Audience Redeemed	182
The Audience of Jesus and of Blake's Jerusalem	186
The Society of Imagination	195
The Phases of Expression	198
Epilogue	205
Index	207

LIST OF ILLUSTRATIONS

1. William Blake, Laocoön . Sir Geoffrey Keynes, Suffolk.	21
2. William Blake, The Resurrection of the Dead . Trustees of the British Museum.	166
3. William Bell Scott after William Blake, There Shall be No More Death , plate 1 in Scott, William Blake: Etchings from His Works (London, 1878).	167