

Contents

List of contributors	page vii
Preface	ix
1 Introduction: The nature and scope of practical intelligence Robert J. Sternberg	1
Part I Intelligence on the job
2 Thinking in action: some characteristics of practical thought Sylvia Scribner	13
3 What characterizes intelligent functioning among senior managers? George O. Klemm, Jr., and David C. McClelland	31
4 Tacit knowledge and intelligence in the everyday world Richard K. Wagner and Robert J. Sternberg	51
5 Toward a broader conception of human intelligence Norman Frederiksen	84
Part II Intelligence in daily life
6 Academic and nonacademic intelligence: an experimental separation Stephen J. Ceci and Jeffrey Liker	119
7 Some lifelong everyday forms of intelligent behavior: organizing and reorganizing Jacqueline J. Goodnow	143
8 The theory of multiple intelligences: some issues and answers Joseph M. Walters and Howard Gardner	163
9 For all practical purposes: criteria for defining and evaluating practical intelligence Martin E. Ford	183

Part III The development of practical intelligence

- 10 Toward life-span research on the functions and pragmatics of intelligence 203
Roger A. Dixon and Paul B. Baltes
- 11 Practical intelligence in later adulthood 236
Sherry L. Willis and K. Warner Schaie

Part IV Cross-cultural approaches to practical intelligence

- 12 Bricolage: savages do it daily 271
J. W. Berry and S. H. Irvine
- 13 The development of practical intelligence in cross-cultural perspective 307
Jane R. Mercer, Margarita Gomez-Palacio and Eligio Padilla
- 14 Intelligence and literacy: the relationships between intelligence and the technologies of representation and communication 338
David R. Olson
- 15 The search for intraterrestrial intelligence 361
Richard K. Wagner
- Name Index 379
- Subject Index 381