CONTENTS

Foreword ix
Jeff McMahan
Preface xvii
Bradley Jay Strawser
Notes on Contributors xxi

PART ONE JUST WAR THEORY AND THE PERMISSIBILITY TO KILL BY REMOTE CONTROL

1. Introduction: The Moral Landscape of Unmanned Weapons 3
Bradley Jay Strawser

2. Just War Theory and Remote Military Technology: A Primer 25
Matthew W. Hallgarth

3. Distinguishing Drones: An Exchange 47
Asa Kasher and Avery Plaw

PART TWO THE ETHICS OF DRONE EMPLOYMENT

4. Drones and Targeted Killing: Angels or Assassins? 69
David Whetham

5. War without Virtue? 84
Robert Sparrow

6. Robot Guardians: Teleoperated Combat Vehicles in Humanitarian Military Intervention 106
Zack Beauchamp and Julian Savulescu

7. Counting the Dead: The Proportionality of Predation in Pakistan 126
Avery Plaw

8. The Wizard of Oz Goes to War: Unmanned Systems in Counterinsurgency 154
Rebecca J. Johnson

9. Killing Them Safely: Extreme Asymmetry and Its Discontents 179
Uwe Steinhoff

PART THREE AUTONOMOUS DRONES AND THE FUTURE OF UNMANNED WEAPONRY

10. Engineering, Ethics, and Industry: The Moral Challenges of Lethal Autonomy 211
George R. Lucas Jr.

11. Autonomous Weapons Pose No Moral Problem 229
Stephen Kershnar

Bibliography 247
Index 261