

Contents

List of Illustrations	ix
List of Major Primary Sources	xi
Introduction: Talking to Strangers	1
Fear and Hope in China, 2
Strangers: A Group Biography, 10
Lei Feng vs. Lévinas: A Morality Play, 17
Strangers: A Reading Guide, 29
PART I. ALIEN KIND
1 The Benighted and the Enchanted	37
The Chinese Sphinx and the Prevaricating Intellectual, 39
The Subaltern Goddess and the Crusading Party, 44
The Homespun Priest and the Pilgrimage Ethnographer, 51
The Taiwanese Ghost and the Revenant Daytrippers, 59
2 Animals Are Us	71
Anthropomorphism and Zoomorphism, 72
The Bare Life of Animals, 82
Animal Totemism, 100
Why Animals? 110
PART II. FICTIVE KIN
3 The Power and Pollution of the Stranger Woman	117
Fu Caiyun/Sai Jinhua: The Courtesan Who Saves the Empire, 120
Zhenzhen: The Spy Who Refuses to Go Home, 136
Nixi/Mrs. Samson: The Widow Who Never Was a Wife, 139
Li Guoxiang: The Cadre Who Terrorizes a Town, 147
From Parvenu to Pariah, 154

4	The Country and the City	158
	Civility, Governmentality, and the Making of Ruralites and Urbanites, 161
	To Be a Gentleman, 170
	Maids, Tenants, and the Comedies of Stranger Sociality, 178
PART III. FRIENDS AND FOES
5	The Enemy Within	197
	Class Racism and the Logic of Displacement, 202
	The Water Dungeon and Socialist Horror, 211
	The Rent Collection Courtyard and the Law of History, 216
	The Maoist Political, 236
6	Foreign Devils	243
	“Foreign Devils” and the Unmaking of Tianxia , 246
	Cosmopolitan Peasants in Devils on the Doorstep , 253
	Cosmopolitan Nannies in Nannies for Foreigners , 263
	To Be a Foreigner, 280
	Conclusion: Literature and the Veil of Ignorance	285
	The Writerly and the Readerly, 288
	What Good Is (Chinese) Literature? 296
	Notes	305
	Bibliography	319
	Glossary	341
	Index	347