

Contents

Acknowledgments	vii
Foreword	ix
Introduction	xi

German Romantic Music Aesthetics

Iniquitous Innocence: The Ambiguity of Music in the Phantasien über die Kunst (1799) Richard Littlejohns	1
The Cosmic-Symphonic: Novalis, Music, and Universal Discourse James Hodkinson	13
“Das Hören ist ein Sehen von und durch innen”: Johann Wilhelm Ritter and the Aesthetics of Music Thomas Strässle	27
Music and Non-Verbal Reason in E. T. A. Hoffmann Jeanne Riou	43

Responses to Goethe

Perceptions of Goethe and Schubert Lorraine Byrne	59
Goethe’s Egmont , Beethoven’s Egmont David Hill	75
A Tale of Two Fausts : An Examination of Reciprocal Influence in the Responses of Liszt and Wagner to Goethe’s Faust David Larkin	87

- Musical Gypsies and Anti-Classical Aesthetics:
The Romantic Reception of Goethe's Mignon
Character in Brentano's Die mehreren Wehmüller und ungarische Nationalgesichter
Stefanie Bach 105

Sounds of Hoffmann

- Stages of Imagination in Music and Literature:
E. T. A. Hoffmann and Hector Berlioz
Andrea Hübener 123
- The Voice from the Hereafter:
E. T. A. Hoffmann's Ideal of Sound and Its Realization
in Early Twentieth-Century Electronic Music
Werner Keil 143

Lieder

- "My song the midnight raven has outwing'd":
Schubert's "Der Wanderer," D. 649
James Parsons 165
- The Notion of Personae in Brahms's
"Bitteres zu sagen denkst du," op. 32, no. 7:
A Literary Key to Musical Performance?
Natasha Loges 183

Romantic Overtones in Contemporary German Literature

- Robert Schneider's Schlafes Bruder —
A Neo-Romantic Musikernovelle?
Jürgen Barkhoff 203
- Notes on the Contributors 217
- Notes on the Editors 221
- Index 223