

Contents

| | |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| List of illustrations | vii |
| Acknowledgments | ix |
| | |
| PART I | |
| Relevant issues | 1 |
| 1 Introduction | 3 |
| 2 Business history and theories of the firm | 10 |
| 3 Entrepreneurship | 20 |
| | |
| PART II | |
| The company between the preindustrial era and the First Industrial Revolution | 29 |
| 4 Preindustrial manufacturing | 31 |
| 5 Enterprises and entrepreneurs of the First Industrial Revolution | 40 |
| 6 Technology, society, and the factory system | 51 |
| | |
| PART III | |
| The birth and consolidation of big business | 59 |
| 7 Infrastructures | 61 |
| 8 Technology and organization | 71 |
| 9 National patterns | 83 |

PART IV

State and market in the period between the two world wars 99

10 The multidivisional corporation and managerial capitalism 101

11 Europe between the two wars: convergence and divergence with the United States 112

12 At the origins of the Japanese miracle: entrepreneurship,
the State, and business groups 123

PART V

From the postwar years to the fall of the Wall:
the age of “shrinking space” 133

13 From World War II to the Third Industrial Revolution 135

14 American hegemony and its aftermath 148

15 The Soviet Union: the antagonist 161

16 Japan: the challenger 171

17 Hybrid Europe 183

18 Different strategies for “catching up”: South Korea and Argentina 196

PART VI

The globalization of today 207

19 Multinationals: quid novi? 209

20 New forms of enterprise 217

21 The “roaring 1990s”: America is back 224

22 Slowing down: Europe and Japan 234

23 New protagonists: China and India 243

24 A last look 252

Index 256